FREEMASONRY

FREEMASONRY IN MADRAS.

The earliest Lodge in Southern India was established at Madras in 1757 and was soon followed by three others in 1761.

Abed 1768, Captain Edmund Pascal was appointed Provincial Grand Master for Madras and its Dependencies, and in the following year a fifth Lodge was erected at Fort St. George.

In 1774 Omdat-ul Umra, eldest son of the Nawab of Arcot, was initiated at Trichinopoly and in his reply to the congratulations of the Grand Lodge of England on the occasion he stated that he considered the title of an English Mason as one of the most honourable he possessed.

The Coromandel Coast, as this District was then styled, continued under the Grand Lodge of England until 1777 when Freemasonry under the "Regular" Grand Lodge went into abeyance on this coast until 1784. During this period—one of depression owing to the disturbed state of the country—Atholl masonry kept the Coast alive in Southern India. In 1748, an "Ancient" Lodge of Atholl Masons, No 153, was started at Fort St George, it exercised the functions of a Provincial Grand Lodge in granting warrants for subordinate Lodges it built a masonic hall and established a charity fund; and in 1789 its Master and Past Masters were constituted into a Provincial Grand Committee with power to hear petitions and grant dispensations.

A Provincial Grand Lodge under the Atholl sanction was regularly established at Fort St. George under warrant, dated the 6th September 1781, but the dissensions in the settlements had so rent asunder every link of social life that even the fraternal bond of Masonry had been annihilated in the general wreck.

In 1786, the Ornate Military Lodge, No. 488, was established at Arcot under the Grand Lodge of England.

The rivalry between the two Grand Lodges of England was reflected in India and to Madras as does the credit of anticipating in a very happy manner the Union of 1818 by the amalgamation in 1786 of the "Atholls or Antients" and the "Regulars or Moderns" under Brigadier-General Horne who had been appointed on the 24th February 1786 by the Duke of Cumberland as "Provincial Grand Master for the Coast of Coromandel the Presidency of Madras, and parts adjacent." In the following year Lodge No 153 tendered its allegiance to General Horne, surrendered its warrant, and joined one of the Lodges under that Officer, and six other Lodges were added to the roll, viz, Perfect Harmony St. Thomas' Mount; Social Friendship, Madras; Trichinopoly; Social Friendship, St. Thomas Mount the Stewards; and Perfect Unanimity.

During the period 1790-1813 four Lodges were added to the roll—Solid Friendship, Trichinopoly 1790, Unity, Peace and Concord, 1798; St. Andrew a Union (19th Foot), 1803 and Philanthropists, in the Scotch Brigade (94th Foot), 1802, at Madras.

All these Lodges with the exception of that of Perfect Unanimity disappeared in course of time and their places have been taken by others.

The Provincial title "Coast of Coromandel" was exchanged for "Madras" in 1842. The designation of the Provincial Grand Lodge was altered into that of District Grand Lodge in 1886.

In June 1879, the Board of General Purposes was formed. Of interesting public events in which the District Grand Lodge has taken part may be mentioned the laying on the 15th September 1835, of the foundation-stone of the building erected for use as an Orphan Asylum in Poppen's Broadway, Madras, and subsequently occupied by the Industrial School. This memorial foundation-stone was subsequently removed to the premises occupied by the Civil Orphan Asylum first at Egmore and now on the Poonamallee Road.

On the 6th February, 1867, the District Grand Lodge held a special communication at Chepauk in order to assist His Excellency the Governor in laying the chief corner-stone of the Presidency College.

In 1839 the District Grand Lodge assisted at the laying of the foundation-stone by Lord Elphinstone, the Governor of Madras of the new Masonic Temple erected on the beach by the Lodge of Perfect Unanimity, and in this temple Lord Elphinstone was installed as Provincial Grand Master on the 18th March, 1841. This property, which was leased by the Lodge of Perfect Unanimity to the Government in 1867 and subsequently sold to them in 1874, is now occupied by the Inspector-General of Police.

The District Grand Lodge possesses an interesting relic in a Bible which was presented to the Provincial Grand Lodge in 1863 by Bro Barber of the 15th Regiment, M.I. This had been presented by the "John O'Gaunt" Lodge, Leicester, to the "John O'Gaunt" in the East Lodge, 15th Regiment, but the latter Lodge was never constituted.

Prior to 1805 the District Grand Lodge did not possess any building of its own but held its meetings in the premises occupied by private Lodges, in the earlier days in those of the Lodge of Perfect Unanimity, from 1867 to 1869 at the Masonic Hall in Vepery where the majority of the Lodges of Madras City held their meetings, and from 1869 to 1895 in the premises belonging to the Lodge of Perfect Unanimity on the Mount Road.

"AMRUTANJAN" Buy a tin and keep it always.

Various attempts have been made in the past with the object of erecting a central temple at the headquarters of the district. A scheme for a central masonic hall was brought forward in 1880 but did not fructify. Ten years later (1890) the proposed building a Madras Freemasons' Hall Association in order to acquire and furnish a hall for the accommodation of the District Grand Lodge and of the Lodges meeting at the Presidency Town.

In 1905 the District Grand Lodge purchased the Mount Road property belonging to the Lodge of Perfect Unanimity, and the Lodge in the city began its tenants. Several schemes for the improvement of this building and its adaptation for masonic purposes were considered but had eventually to be abandoned owing to the fact that the building itself did not lend itself to the purpose. The property was sold on the 1st July 1915, District Grand Lodge continuing as tenant for some time, and in April, 1917, a plot of land in a central position in Egmore was acquired with the object of erecting thereon a suitable Freemasons' Hall with edifice for the District Grand Lodge. While the scheme for the latter was under elaboration a temporary building was erected on the property acquired.

The foundation stone of the new building was laid on 26th February 1923 by Bro. H. E. Lord Willington, at which function the elite of Madras was present. The building has now been completed and it was opened by H. N. Viscount Goschen, Governor of Madras, on 5th February 1924 and dedicated by Rt. Wor. Bro. A. Y. G. Campbell, District Grand Master on 27th February 1924.

MADRAS.

SECTION IV.

THE CITY OF MADRAS.

THE Englishman on board the steamer, passing along the coast of India when he comes into lat. $13^{\circ} 5' 0''$ N., long. $80^{\circ} 16' 0''$ E., will find himself before the historic city of Madras. The area included within the municipal boundary limits some twenty-seven square miles, the extreme length of the city from north to south is about nine miles, the greatest breadth at any one point about four miles. The city presents in the foreground a magnificent line of noble edifices on a level sandy shore made pleasing to the eye by green clumps of trees at intervals. The placid blue sea breaks in surf along the line, and the whole scene is dominated by the flag which floats in the tropical air from the flagstaff of Fort St. George. In the distant background are seen some low hills, the buildings on which may be visible even to the naked eye on a clear day. The general pleasing aspect of the city from the sea has been the same during the three centuries, nearly since the old Fort of Cogan and Day was built. "It is, without exception, the prettiest place I ever saw," wrote Mrs. Kinderley, a young and adventurous lady, who travelled alone to India to meet her husband in 1765.

The early history of Madras and the founding of Fort St. George possess much interest. In South India, the first factory established by the English was the one at Masulipatam, the seaport of the Golconda Kingdom, but the first fortified settlement of the English was at Armagon. Francis Day the Chief of Armagon, finding the place unsuited for trade, went southwards in search of a new settlement. He received overtures from Damarla Venkatswami, the Naik of Poomalallee, to establish an English settlement at Madras, and it is also stated that the Naik desired that the town should be named after his father Chinappa Naik. When the Agent at Masulipatam fell in with Day's proposal to form a new settlement, Day selected a site in Madraspatnam and obtained from the Naik in 1639 a grant of the site and a cowlie to build a fort on it. This grant was confirmed by Sri Ranga Rayulu of Chandragiri, the representative of the waning power of Vijayanagar. Francis Day and his chief Andrew Cogan without even waiting for the Company's sanction, dismantled the fort at Armagon and erected a fort on the site and called it Fort St. George. Of this fort nothing now remained but the name and the site.

When Francis Day came to this place on his mission to find a site for a new settlement, he found the territory around it cut in three big pieces by the two rivers the Cooom and the Coomrae Canal, which then were called the Triplicane River and the North or Elambore River. The Triplicane River ran through the villages of Chetput Nungumbankam and Triplicane. The North River flowed parallel to and about a mile distant from the coast. At the site of the present General Hospital, it turned to the East and when near the sea, turned southwards again for about three-quarters of a mile and met the Triplicane River at its outlet. At the first bend near the General Hospital it was connected with the Triplicane River by a canal, on the North bank of which is the present Penitentiary. There was besides a small stream whose course was along Popham's Broadway across the present Esplanade to near the second bend of the North River. Day selected the strip of land between the sea and the North River with the Cooom on the south and the village of Madraspatnam very close to it on the north. On this strip there existed it is believed a village known as Chinnakrupam. Even before Day's settlement there existed two villages called Chinnakrupam (or Chennaspatnam) and Madraspatnam (or Madras). Chinnakrupam must have been a small hamlet of fishermen mostly. On the site of this hamlet Cogan and Day's Fort St. George was built the name Chennaspatnam (the urban form of Chinnakrupam) being given to the native town which grew around it in deference to the wishes of the local Naik. The name Madraspatnam persisted in use. As the village which went by that name continued to exist the native population showed a preference to the name Chennaspatnam, while the English preferred the name Madraspatnam (or Madras) for the combined towns of Chennaspatnam and Madraspatnam.

Cogan and Day's fort was nearly square with a bastion at each angle and measured on the outside 108 yards from north to south and 100 yards from east to west. The construction was begun on March 1 1640 and completed in 1645. A promise of exemption from taxes for 80 years attracted nearly 400 weaver families from the neighbourhood and many Portuguese from San Thomé—an earlier European settlement—some three miles from Fort St. George. The garrison consisted of 88 Europeans and 36 Natives.

In 1658 the Agent, Aaron Baker, began to build outworks which were brought nearly to a state of completion in 1661. This became the outer fort the basis of the modern Fort St. George. For a long time the inner fort was called Fort St. George the area within the walls of the outer fort, where the European population owned houses and lived, being called the Christian or White Town. Just to the north of it and separated from the northern wall by a wide street, called the Bazaar or Market, lay the Black Town where the Indian population lived. Like the Christian Town it was quadrangular and was bounded on the north by the present eastern portion of the China Bazaar on the south by the inner north wall of the modern Fort St. George, on the east by the sea and on the west by a line parallel to the shore extending from the south end of Popham's Broadway to a point near the Sally port on the north-west glacis where it struck the course of the North River. The perimeter of this old Black Town was 2,200 yards. There were seven main streets running north to south and two main streets running east to west. The fifth street had a temple and the Moors a mosque. To the west of the town flowed the stream from Poppam's Broadway, which has now degenerated into a drainage channel. On the other side of the channel were some fields and gardens and beyond them lay Peddannaikuppeta. The channel was crossed by a small bridge. To the north of the old George Town was Muthialpet. Being the 'out town' of the Company's Fort the Black Town was inhabited by the Company's Indian servants, whose protection as well as the better defence of the Fort required the erection of a rampart around the Black Town. An earthen rampart was begun by Agent Irie about 1644. Governor Yale, against the wishes of his Council erected a turf bulwark, which fell down during the rains and the cost of which he had to pay. Permanent fortifications, in brick and masonry, were however begun in 1700 and finished in 1797. The total length of this wall was 1,500 yards, and it was 17 ft. thick. During the French occupation of Madras (1746-69), the southern half of this town and all its walls were demolished for the better defence of the Fort. In 1787 the Hindu temple was transferred from the old Black Town to its present site near the Flower Bazaar. The remaining half of the old town was demolished in 1758 on the recommendation of Engineer Ollivier. Thus the old Black Town with its Chitti population, Moors and Company's merchants disappeared into the crowded streets of Peddannaikuppeta and Muthialpet and gave its name to this united town.

The erection of a masonry wall around the new Georgetown formed always a part of any scheme for the complete defence of the City of Madras. Benjamin Robins was sent here in 1761 with a special commission to execute this work, but it was not till 1764, when Engineer Ollivier pointed out its urgency, that it was begun, and it was finished in 1779. Till about the middle of the last century it was deemed of sufficient consequence for Government to maintain it. In the name of the street lying within the line of the west wall which bears the name 'Wall Tax Road' we have a memorial of this piece of fortification. Under the Preservation of Ancient Monuments Act, the Government have also put up a memorial tablet on the remains of this wall near Royapuram.

The military character of the Company's Government became well established in the first half of the eighteenth century. Cogan and Day's Fort (the old Fort St. George the Fort within Fort as it was called by the country powers) falling into decay, was demolished and on the site a square called the Fort Square was built in the years 1714-17, which was demolished only in 1835. The improvement of the defences and fortifications of Madras was taken in hand by Engineer John Brohier in 1766 and completed by Chief Engineer Patrick Ross in 1788—quite a generation. Fort St. George is connected with a long roll of distinguished Engineers—Benjamin Robins, John Brohier, Caroline Frederick Scott, John Ollivier, Patrick Ross, George Maule, etc. By the close of the eighteenth century Fort St. George had passed through four phases of development. The first was Cogan and Day's castle; the second the quadrangular bastioned enclosure of the White Town which converted the original castle into a citadel; the third the development of the walled town into a fortress planned as a half decagon; and the fourth the entire reconstruction of the fort as a half octagon on Vanbrugh's system with ample outwork.

The buildings of historical interest in the present Fort St. George are St. Mary's Church the Secretariat (Office and the Council Room), the Office of the Accountant-General and the Government Treasury and the Officers' Mess. The oldest structure in the Fort is St. Mary's Church. The foundation of the Church (the English Church as it was then called) was laid on Easter Monday the 1st of April 1678. The consecration took place in October 1690. The credit of establishing a Church in the Fort for the Company's officers and the oldest Protestant place of worship in India is due entirely to Sir Streynsham Master who raised subscriptions for it. Chive's marriage took place here. Its steeple was built in the last decade of the 17th century. During the siege of Madras (1759-60) it was damaged and re-built in 1795. Among the articles of interest there are the old registers and a silver dish presented by Elihu Yale and Streynsham Master's Bible printed in 1660 which was presented by Mr. O. G. Master of the Civil Service. The sanctuary contains a large altar piece a copy of Raphael's 'Painting of the Last Supper'. It contains the graves of Governor Nicholas Morse, a great-great-grandson of Oliver Cromwell, of Lord Pigot who defended the Fort against Lally in 1782 and was afterwards arrested and imprisoned by his own Council of the famous Missionary-diplomat Schwartz; of Sir Thomas Munro, the people's Collector of the Ceded Districts and afterwards Governor of Madras and of many other makers of Madras history. Lord Pigot's was the first intermural burial in this Church.

The new Council Chamber was built quite recently. The Secretariat buildings contain the old Council Room. The middle portion of the Secretariat building has an interesting history. In the Fort of Cogan and Day there was in the centre a towered structure known as the Fort House. It was built in 1648 and used as the Agent's residence and consultation or Council room. Being very defective and unfit for use it was demolished, and a new one built in 1694-95. Its sides were parallel to the curtain of the inner fort but somewhat nearer to the eastern face of it. Lookpear who was in Madras in 1709 says "The Consultation Room was outlandishly adorned with streamers in several figures imitating those in the armory of the Tower of London."—a strange but significant contrast to the present Council Room. It was a three storied building. The Consultation Room and the Governor's quarters were on the second floor, the Fort Hall which accommodated the "General Table" was on the first floor and the ground floor was used for offices. This Fort House it is believed exists still as the middle portion of the Secretariat building the wings of which were added only in 1820. The present Accountant-General's Office was the Admiralty House of old days. It served as the Town Residence of the Governor. The Court of Admiralty was held in it. State functions were held there. Chive occupied this house at the time of his marriage. It was for some time appropriated as the Guest House of the Governor. The history of the Officers' Mess is as follows.—The Sea Gate and the Colonnade of the old Banqueting Hall in the Fort were for long the general resort of merchants trafficking in sea-borne goods. It was an inconvenient place. Therefore Peter Massey, Captain, a free merchant of Madras, came forward in 1787 with a scheme for providing the town with a special building to serve as an exchange. The land occupied by 'Mr. Hughes' House' which lay at the south end of the easternmost line of buildings north of the Sea Gate was acquired and the old house was replaced by a new structure. It had warehouses and offices on the ground floor and on the first floor the exchange or 'a place of public and free, open and uncontrolled resort for all merchants, dealers, commanders of ships or others having any concern in trade' together with a Brokers' Office, a committee room for the Managers of the Exchange Company and a Public Coffee room. The funds for its construction were raised by lotteries. Mrs. Fay, who visited Madras in 1796, described it as 'a noble building, ornamented with whole length pictures of Lord Cornwallis, Sir Eyre Coote and General Meadows. The Exchange Hall was also used for public meetings, lottery drawings and occasionally for entertainments. Public Auction Rooms were located in it. There was also a Public Subscription Library on the ground floor. The old Madras Bank was located on the ground floor in 1807. The Exchange Tavern occupied for some time a portion of the building. In 1801 St. Andrew's Day was celebrated in the Exchange. The valuable crown jewels of Tippu Sultan were sold by public auction at the Exchange in 1802. On the roof of the Exchange a light-house was erected by the Exchange Committee in 1796. It was a framed iron structure carrying a lantern reflector and twelve lamps burning coconut oil. The light was 90 feet above the sea level at high water. It could be seen from the decks of ships about 17 miles, and from their mastsheads nearly 30 miles. This building is now the Officers Mess of the regiment quartered in Fort St. George.

Prior to 1910, the Council of the Governors of Fort St. George held their meetings in a room in the Secretariat buildings. The enlargement of the Legislative Council in that year made a new Council Chamber necessary and the present building was constructed on the eastern side of the Secretariat. The further enlargement of the Council under the Reform rendered still more accommodation necessary and this was provided by adding a second storey to the buildings of 1910. The black pillars in the building are of historical interest. In the thirteenth of the 18th century, Governor Pitt constructed a handsome colonnade from the Fort Square to the Sea Gate roofed over and lined with 83 pillars of Pallavaram granite. When the French captured Madras in 1746 they carried off these columns to Pondicherry. There they remained until 1771, in which year the British stormed the place and restored the pillars to their former position in Pitts Arcade. The best preserved of these columns were added to the new Council Chamber in 1910 and retained in the present structure.

The Fort has four gates usually open to the public. The South Sea Gate is on the east and leads to the Beach Road. Cars and carriages can go both in and out through this gate. The North Gate is on the north and leads to the China Bazaar Road and High Court, but closed to traffic. St. George's gate is opened always and is the way into the Fort. The Wallajah Gate is on the west; from where the Mount Road begins and is the egress out of the Fort. The main gate, St. George's Gate opens on the north west and leads to the General Hospital, Peddannaickpettah and Poonamallee Road.

The Mount Road, the Poonamallee Road and the Beach Road are the three main highways in Madras. The first two are military roads. They divide the City into three big areas. When the Fort was the centre of all official activity the servants of the Company had garden-houses in Peddannaickpettah especially towards the southern side which was reached by crossing the rivulet in the present Esplanade. The Island was ordinarily their recreation ground crossing the North River in boats. In 1714 a bridge which does not now exist was constructed from the north bank of the River where the Governor's Garden House was connected to the Island. Governor Pitt had laid out north to south a 'great walk on the Island'. The statue of Sir Thomas Munro is more or less in the centre of that great walk. The road to Triplicane then was from that bridge over the Island and the Government House Bridge which was then called Triplicane Bridge. In those days the fashionable residential quarters were in Peddannaickpettah. When the military activities of the Madras Government increased the peace and comforts of country residence could not be had so near the military fortifications. A move to the Choultry plain in the west was open to the European residents. The famous Madras Garden houses began to appear on the Choultry plain (an open expanse which stretched south west of the Fort from the Triplicane or Government House Bridge as far as Mylapore and the Long Walk). The need for a shorter route to the plain and in consequence for a new bridge over the North River was felt and in 1758 the Wallajah Bridge was constructed. It was widened and improved in 1830. The Mount Road from that time ran from the Fort. It was reformed in 1796-98. It passes over the Wallajah Bridge to the Island, which still maintains its old reputation as a recreation ground. The Gymkhana grounds and Pavilion are there on the east side of the road and on the other side are the Body Guard Lines, St. Andrew's Cemetery, St. Mary's Cemetery and an open plain used for football by students and the soldiers of the garrison. In the centre is the statue of Sir Thomas Munro who arrived in Madras as Governor in 1830. He held office for seven years and on the eve of his retirement he was struck down by cholera near Gooty. His statue which is by Chantry was erected by public subscription at a cost of 4,800. The Island is also the Brigade Parade ground. The road there takes you over the Government House Bridge to the old Choultry plain, but now a most busy centre of trade. The Government House Bridge (St. George's Bridge) spans the Cooum River. It was built under the orders of Government in 1805. It replaced an older structure which dated from the first quarter of the 18th century. It was extended in 1823 to admit the passage of the tramway and is now becoming popular under the name of Willington Bridge. On the right immediately before approaching Willington Bridge is a statue of the late Mr. Justice Boddam, of the Madras High Court erected by public subscription in 1911. The statue of King Edward meets your eyes first as you see the bridge. The statue was presented to the City of Madras by Dewan Bahadur Lodd Krishnaswami Balamkandas. On your left is Government House. In 1821 a Garden House was completed for the use of the Governor on the site now occupied by the General Hospital and Medical College. That house was destroyed by Labourdonnais when he occupied Madras in 1746. In 1783 a new Garden House in Triplicane was acquired from the Executors of Mr. Luis de Medeiros. The house was a large one with a frontage of 180 feet and stood in a rectangular compound laid down in the Italian style measuring about 400 by 85 yards. The house was the nucleus of the present Government House. At the time system of the roads which now bound the Park did not exist. The Triplicane High Road ran north without deviation up to the Government House Bridge and passed within 50 yards of the House. Additions were made to the compound and part from time to time. In 1758 the Government House was occupied by the French Count de Lally when besieging Madras. He pulled down its verandahs, destroyed private houses near it and burned the village of Chepauk. The house was put in order again in 1763 and was much improved between 1766 and 1789 when Sir Archibald Campbell was Governor. The second Lord Olive however found it inadequate either as a residence or as a place for holding State entertainments. Extensive alterations and improvements in the house were carried out under his auspices between 1800 and 1805 and the Banqueting Hall which stands by the side of the main House was formally opened in 1803. The compound was extended to the Beach by including part of the Chepauk gardens which had lately been taken over from the Nawab of the Carnatic. The present Government House has a frontage of 269 feet. The Park is 70 acres in extent. During 1930 to 1934 Her Excellency Lady Willingdon effected vast improvements in adding several out-buildings for the occupation of the offices and officers attached to the Government House and the excellent frontage was a most welcome and necessary addition due to Her Excellency's keen sagacity.

On your right is Napier Park laid out in 1871. Behind it is Okinadripet. This village was founded in 1735 by George Morton Pitt in order to develop the supply of oilcoes and to encourage manufacture in Madras as being the best fitted in point of having shade trees for the artificers to work under. Before you reach the mile-end on the Mount Road there are the spacious sale-rooms of Messrs Spencer & Co., the "Madras Mail" Office, the Clock Tower and show-rooms of Messrs P. Orr & Sons, Jewellers and Diamond Merchants. At the mile end is the Maharajah of Vizianagaram's fountain. The place is known to phoenicians and coachmen as Round Tannah. The "Hindin" Office is there, Walajah Road from Chepauk and Triplicane, Ellis Road from Padupet and Thiruvalluvaranpet, Harris' Road from Komalewaranpet, Pudupet and Egmore, meet at the mile-end. Triplicane was granted to the English about the year 1668. It is a purely Hindu suburb with an ancient Vishnu Temple which, in September 1674, was occupied by the Moslems and in March 1875 by the French, and in September the same year by the Dutch. It barely escaped demolition that year. Chepauk is a very congested portion of the City inhabited mostly by Muhammadans who were all dependent on the Chepauk Palace. It contains a big mosque built all in granite, an imposing structure in the midst of squalid dwellings of the Muhammadan poor. Thiruvalluvaranpet is to the north-west of Triplicane. It contains a temple of Siva. It was in the early part of the 18th century considered to be outside the Company's bounds. Padupet was granted to the English by Nawab Muhammed Sayid in 1745. Amir Mahal the residence of the Prince of Arcot, is there. Komalewaranpet is a neat little suburb where a few respectable Hindu houses in modern style have been built. The bridge over the Cooum at that place called Harris bridge is only a recent construction. Pudupet, further to the south west on the Harris Road, contains Indian Christians, Muhammadans and a large Adi Dravida population. The Government Ophthalmic Hospital founded in 1819 at Royapettah is located now on the Marshall's Road Egmore. It has established a reputation as one of the best hospitals in the world. The Madras Reserve Police is quartered here. Egmore, which is a little further off, is considered the healthiest place in Madras; at any rate, it is not so congested as other parts of Madras. It was granted to Governor Higginson by Visier Asad Khan in 1698. The South Indian Railway Station in Egmore has a splendid frontage to the south with two fine porches. It has been built in the popular Hindu-Burmese style. The Arni House of the Jagirdar of Arni is a fine specimen of domestic architecture by Indian nobles. The Presidency Training School for Mistresses is situated in this suburb. The Victoria Technical Institute, the Government Central Museum, the Connemara Public Library and the Government Maternity Hospital are in the Pantheon Road which separates Egmore from Pudupet. The Museum was founded in 1851 with a collection of geological specimens presented by the Madras Literary Society which was then a scientific body and the duplicates of the articles sent to the Great Exhibition of 1851 in Hyde Park. Its habitation then went by the name of "The Pantheon." Around it has grown the pile of buildings which the visitor to the Museum sees.

The Pantheon was built about the year 1778 by Hall Plummer a Civil Servant and contractor. It came to be used a few years later as "Public Rooms" or "Assembly Rooms." It was purchased in 1795 by a committee formed to regulate the amusements of the settlement. The Committee was designated "The Madras Assembly." The dramatic entertainments, balls and dinner parties which took place there were controlled by a master of ceremonies who in 1803 was Mark Boworth. Lord Olive gave a ball and supper at the Pantheon on Monday February 28th the birthday anniversary of George the Third. An Armenian merchant (Moorat) purchased the building in 1831 from whom the Government took it in 1830. It was allotted as the Collector's Outcherry, and it is still known to the common people more as the 'Collector's Outcherry' than as the Museum.

The Museum contains an archaeological section of much value. Scriptured marbles from the railings of the Buddha's steps at Amaravati, a fragment of Buddha's bones, a collection of arms and armour from the Fort St. George Arsenal and the Tanjore Palace, and a valuable collection of coins which some years ago suffered a loss by theft. The Connemara Public Library was opened in 1806 and attached to the Museum. The marble statue of Lord Jervis, which stood in the Fort since 1860 and had suffered damage owing to exposure to sea air and other causes, was early in this century renovated by the well-known Indian artist Mhatre and transferred to the interior of the Connemara Library. The semi-circular building in the front is a theatre, to seat about 600 persons, provided with a stage adapted for lectures, conferences and charitable entertainments.

by amateurs. The Madras Dramatic Society generally gives its performances in this theatre—a member of the old Madras Assembly! The Victoria Theatrical Institute owes its origin to the public demonstrations of loyalty and love to the Queen-Mother Victoria. South Indian industrial products may be seen exhibited there. It is under the control of a committee of Europeans and Indians. The Government Madras Hospital was founded in 1844 by public subscription and managed by a committee with State aid. In 1847 the Government assumed charge of it and in 1861 transferred it to its present building. In connection with the acquisitions of Chempak, Podappakuram and other villages there is a very amusing letter (18-12-1878) from Sir William Langhorne to Brahmins Venkateswari, the Company's Agent at Golconda, as regards French claims to several villages round Madras. "Triphonse, you know, has always been in our hands; Yengamour is in Hessein Cawn's [Ossa Veronda] hands and Whanyabaka Chempaka, Podappaka and Condour, and several other towns also which are very convenient for us to take our recreation in who have no other designs in this country, but to live peaceably and undisturbed in our business."

The imaginary visitor left Mount Road at the mile end. Now, as he resumes his walk, he finds on his left Messrs. Whitmore, Lasker & Co., Messrs. Wrenn, Bennett & Co., the Madras Warehouse, Christ Church and the Cosmopolitan Club. On the right the big garage of Garage Ltd., the hospitable mansion of Rosette Bros. Then if he takes the road on his left, General Patter's Road, he will in five minutes be at the Madras Club. It is eighty years old and is now a palace occupied by high European officers. Pymott's Road, crosses Patter's Road, next to the Club. If he goes straight, there is the red-plastered Wesley College, Royapettah. Gopal Baugh comes next. The road passes through Royapettah by the newly-built Royapettah Hospital which was maintained by the Corporation of Madras, up to October 1919 and afterwards handed over to the Government. At the Royapettah Police Station there is a turning on the left which takes the visitor to the Lloyd Road, the Edward Elliot Road and to the Lus Church Road crossing. These three roads now contain the residences of Indians and have become the fashionable residential suburb of Indian Merchants, Vakils, Judges and others. Edward Elliot Road owes its origin to Edward Francois Elliot who was private Secretary to his father who was Governor of Madras from 1814 to 1820. The road contains an excellent avenue and connects the Cathedral Road and the South Beach. Near the road are the sheds of the Madras Electric Tramways, the Electric Supply sub-station and the Shell Petrol Depot. The Lus Church is about the middle of the Lus Church Road. The inscribed stone bears the date 1816; but the inscription does not seem to be authentic. Evidence points to a much later date of its erection between 1847 and 1862. The origin of the name Lus is interesting. Some storm-tossed mariners vowed a church to the Virgin if they were delivered from the fury of the elements. Forthwith a guiding light flashed out. They steered towards it and came to shore. Pursuing their way for a mile into the interior they at length reached the spot whence the brilliance shone only to find the light extinguished. On that spot was erected the Church of Our Lady of Light. There is a garden-house or bungalow named Lus House. Close to it in the Lus (suburb) but included in Teynampet is the "Grove" which was the residence of the Governor Alexander Davidson and which is now owned and occupied by the Hon. Mr. C. P. Ramaswami Ayyar. It was one of the houses proposed for the Observatory at the time of its establishment. Sunder Gardens, Sullivan's Gardens and the newly built mansion of the late Justice Sunder Iyer deserve notice. From the Lus Church begins the suburb of Myslopore proper. Brodie's Road goes along the west side of the Myslopore Temple tank. Myslopore is a town of much antiquity and is mentioned by Ptolemy. The name means "Peacock City" from the peacock standard which the old Tamil Kings of places carried. The deity worshipped is Siva as Kapaleswara. The big tank and gardens all around the place moderate the heat in the hot months. The agraharam or the Brahmin quarter of this place has no houses of any architectural value. A number of fine houses there are on the old traditional plan with open quadrangles in the interior. Myslopore still presents the aspect of a village. In 1675 the temple was occupied by the French during the siege of San Thome.

Leaving Myslopore, let him now resume his walk southwards along Brodie's Road. He will get to the suburb of Adyar. The native portion of this suburb is of no consequence. Its importance comes from its being a large fashionable European residential suburb. Some of the oldest garden houses built by the Company's servants are here. The Beachborough, Brodie Castle, Brunton Villa, Mowbray's Gardens (the premises of the Adyar Club), Paget's Gardens, Seale's Gardens, Gambier's Gardens. Outside the Municipal toll-gate is Blenheim Bridge over the Adyar, which leads to the spacious compound of the Theosophical Society, a small colony is itself laid out in a delightfully oriental style. Fowler's Gardens and Elliot's Beach, so called after E. F. Elliot, son of the Right Hon. Hugh Elliot, Governor of Madras.

Returning to the Kardy Building on the Mount Road, opposite to which is the British Government Press built in Indo-Saravasthi style the Lawrence House Messrs. Hingmoolahams, Addison, the show rooms of Messrs. Simpson & Co. the Fiat Motor Agency. The visitor may now ramble along the Mount Road until he arrives at the statue of General Neil of Malabar fame. Brigadier-General Neil fell gloriously at the relief of Lucknow 24th Sept. 1857 at the age of 47. The statue was erected by public subscription in 1899. The road on his right takes him to Coomaraswami Hotel, Free Masons' Hall and a few bungalows. This road is along the river-side and meets the Pantheon Road at Anderson's Bridge. Then on the Mount Road come the magnificent showrooms and premises of Messrs. Spencer & Co. the Spencer's Hotel the Thousand Lights of the Nawab of Arcot, Mackay's Garden (the first garden house built on the Obolary plan) and St. George's Cathedral. The Cathedral was built by Lt.-Col. T. F. De Harland in 1816 in the Ionic style the columns being handsomely finished with the polished plaster-work that resembles marble. The Mount Road here passes through Teynampet.

A turning to the left takes you into Cathedral Road which at the Theological College (Sullivan's Gardens) meets the Mowbray's Road. It is one of the most beautiful highways of Madras being reserved for the greater part of its length. It separated Teynampet from Mylapore and Fort. The Mowbray Club (Mowbray's Gardens) marks its termination. If at the Cathedral he had turned off into Nungambakam High Road on the right within a furlong he would pass the Trank Road from Bangalore. There are a number of European residences on either side. A small road on the left gets him into the village of Nungambakam, a suburb of Madras to the south-west of Ngorore. The village was granted to the English in 1768 and had a field resort of which there is no trace now. The turning to the east at the end of this road, along the College Road, the Observatory and the Old College takes you to Anderson's Bridge. The Observatory was constructed in 1793 under the supervision of Michael Topping. The private observatory of William Petrie afforded the nucleus of the Observatory equipments. Michael Topping was the first Astronomer and was succeeded by John Goldingham, F.R.S., who was a Mathematician, Engineer, Architect, Editor, and Astronomer combined. He had worked before this as assistant to William Petrie in his private observatory. Petrie was one of the ablest civil servants of the Company. His range of knowledge was wide and extensive—Astronomy, Chemistry, Mathematics, Banking, Finance and Engineering. To a knowledge of these he combined a keen insight into administrative and literary ability. This Observatory was the first established by Europeans in the East. The establishment of the Solar Physics Observatory at Kodakkanal has reduced the work of this institution to meridian observations for determining the time and the maintenance of the time service, which is effected by the daily transmission to the Central Telegraph Office at Madras, and thence automatically throughout India, of a signal marking the moment at which standard time is 4 P. M. Observations are also made for the issue of storm warnings. The College for Junior Civil Servants was located in the Old College buildings. The spacious hall in it was long used for dramatic and other entertainments. It is now the office of the Director of Public Instruction. The Madras Literary Society and Auxiliary of the Royal Asiatic Society occupies a portion of the building for its big library containing about 45,000 volumes.

The other important buildings in this suburb are the Mansion, Doreton House Mackay's Garden, Fyrot's Garden and Tulloch's Garden. The last two are portions of Dr Anderson's famous Botanic Garden which covered an area of about 111 acres. His name still survives in Anderson's Bridge and Road.

At the junction of Mount Road and Cathedral Road are the Agri Horticultural Gardens of Madras. An Annual Flower Show is held there in February. Newington House is occupied by the office of the Surgeon-General. At the fourth mile and was the cenotaph of Lord Cornwallis which has been transferred opposite to the Post Office, North Beach. The memorial was surrounded by an avenue oval drive and was the daily objective of Madras society until the South Beach Road was laid out. Sir Samuel Auchmuty was received at the cenotaph by the officers of the general staff when he returned from the conquest of Java. From the Agri Horticultural gardens all motorists proceed to the Beach via Cathedral Road and its continuation the Edward Elliot Road which contains an excellent avenue and a well kept up-to-date Shell pump for quick supply of petrol. The Kalyani Hospital for women and children is also on this road.

Quitting the Municipal limits, along the same road the Training College for Teachers which is situated at Saidapet, is only a few minutes drive. Adjoining it is a red brick building which was once the Madras Agricultural College and Government Experimental Farm. These have now been transferred to Colaba and established on a wider basis. The Marmalade Bridge, which spans the Adyar next to the Agricultural College buildings, was rebuilt by a rich Armenian merchant Petrus Ussan, at his own expense, in 1796. He has left a fund for its maintenance also. The Governor's country residence at Guindy was built in the time of the second Lord Olive, and is only about a mile from the bridge on the other side of the Adyar. The new Engineering College Buildings costing over 20 lakhs of rupees is located here. The King Institute of Preventive Medicine and the Race Club are buildings deserving notice here. The Guindy Races have been in existence for more than a century now.

Without any more stoppages St Thomas Mount, the terminus ad quoniam of this long road may now be reached. St Thomas Mount, which is about 3 miles from Marmalade Bridge, can be seen on the right hand side as the bridge is crossed. It is about 230 feet above the sea level. On its summit is an old Portuguese Church called the "Expectation of the Blessed Virgin." The Church was built in 1647 and belongs to the Armenian Catholics.

The erection of Cornwallis Cenotaph so far away from the Fort and the sea-shore needs an explanation. When the military exigencies of the Government required the clearing of a large area around the Fort, the Indian residents of the cleared ground moved into the streets of the adjoining pettahs, but the European population migrated to the Chooly plain which was easily accessible from the Fort and was on the way to St Thomas' Mount, the health resort of the settlement from its earliest days. The roads from Bangalore and Chingleput meet very near there. These advantages made the Chooly plain a favourite place for the building of country residences. A feature of social life in the West, particularly of Europeans, has been the spending of holidays in country residences away from the busy haunts of people. The climate of Madras required it. The Chooly plain became the favourite place in the first half of the 18th century. In the beginning garden houses were built in the neighbourhood of Chepauk and Triplicane. It was one of these houses that was purchased for the Governor's country residence in 1758 and which is now the Government House at Madras. In 1768 George Mackay set the example of building on the Chooly plain. About the year 1774 applications for grants of building sites were numerous. Isaac Munroe estimated in 1780 that there were 800 to 900 garden houses on the Chooly plain. It is believed that Philip Stovey, who was then Civil Architect, had much to do with the beautifying of Madras by landscaping handsome mansions. By the beginning of the 19th century the Choultry plain, which was traversed throughout its entire length by a beautiful highway, became one of the most fashionable residential areas about Madras. The Cocotaph was therefore erected on the plain.

Some idea of the famous Madras garden houses may be formed from the following extracts:—

"For Sala. House on the East side of the Road leading to St. Thomas' Mount, situated between the New Church and the Comotaph and little more than 3 miles from the Wallajah Gate of the Fort; first floor 8 feet high and second floor 20 feet; (extent) 9 to 10 awarises. The greatest part of the ground on which the house is built is a spot on which a village was raised [sic] between 20 and 30 years ago and it was then planted with trees (Mango and Coconut). The house fronts and is open to the East and West and open to the South. Bamboo hedge [around the compound].

"For Sala. House occupied by George Garrow built by Dr. Anderson, 20 wells and an extensive tank—choicest fruit trees—Enclosed with a brick wall—between 15 and 20 awarises—worth Rs 30,000, furnished."

About the style of the buildings, Mrs. Kindersley says: "The houses are neat and pretty any of them large, in all the good houses the apartments are upstairs and all on one floor; the rooms are large and lofty. Most of the houses are built with a verandah, [verandahs] which is a terrace on a level with the rooms in the ground, and sometimes in the back part of the house supported by pillars below and roof above supported likewise by pillars, with rails round toles on. The verandahs give a handsome appearance to the houses on the outside, and are of great use, keeping out the sun by day, and in the evenings are cool and pleasant to sit in. But what gives the greatest charm to the houses is a material peculiar to the place; it is a cement or plaster called chunam made of the shells of a very large species of oysters found on this coast. These shells, when burnt, pounded and mixed with water form the strongest cement imaginable. If it is to be used as a plaster, they mix it with white of eggs, milk and some other ingredients; when dry it is as hard, and very near as beautiful as marble. The rooms, staircases, etc., are covered with it, the heat of the climate admits of an open, airy style of building which is pleasing to the eye a roof supported with pillars is more elegant than a wall with windows and doors, besides the rooms being unencumbered with chimneys makes it more easy to lay them out in uniformity. The houses of the English gentlemen are lofty and well proportioned and from their construction are so extremely cool that I can scarcely believe myself in the Torrid Zone so wrote Mr. Philip Dormer Stanhope who was in Madras in 1774.

From the main Gate of Fort St. George the Poonamallee Road takes you to the Medical College on the left, on the right is the Memorial Hall, erected in commemoration of the escape of Madras from the horrors of the Indian Mutiny. The Bible Society and the Christian Vernacular Literature Society have their premises there. The Mint Street has its southern end here. The squalid quarters, John Pereira's, which was once a fashionable suburb, has been cleared, and Railway offices have been built on the spot. Next to the Medical College is the General Hospital constructed in 1773 by John Sullivan. The inscription on the front wall that it was built in 1763 evidently refers to the removal of the hospital from the Fort. The hospital originated as an amalgamation of two formerly existing hospitals, the Garrison Hospital and the Old Naval Hospital. The former of these two structures was originally a warehouse of the East India Company and must have been built before 1769, but the exact date is not known. The Old Naval Hospital was formerly a granary, and was converted into a hospital in 1744. Considerable alterations have been made to these buildings from time to time. Facing the General Hospital and turning south to north is the Wall Tax Road. Opposite to the General Hospital is the Central Station, the principal terminus of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway. This splendid building was designed by H. F. Chisholm, Consulting Architect to the Government and was built in 1878. A handsome clock tower rising to an altitude of 136 feet surmounts the edifice. To the east of the Central Station are the beautiful palatial offices of the M & S. M. Railway recently built. Here the road passes over the bridge which crosses Cochrane's Canal (formerly the North River). To the north of the road and along the western bank of this canal is the People's Park Madras which is owed to Governor Sir Charles Trevelyan.

It contains ornamental grounds with a good zoological collection. The Park is bounded on the west by Sydenham's Road and on the north by the Salt Coteaux Goods Station of the M & S. M. Ry. The South Indian Athletic Association has its ground and pavilion in the Park. The Moore Market the new Evening Bazaar, the Victoria Town Hall and Ripon Buildings occupy the southern portion of the Park and face the road. It is a great relief to turn from the red-brick buildings so much in fashion now, to the Ripon Buildings (the new Corporation office) finished in white plaster producing a marble effect. This new office of the Madras Corporation was opened by Lord Hardinge on Nov. 28 1912. The southern side of the road is occupied by Sir Savai Ramaswami Mudaliar's Choultry and the Park Station of the S. I. Railway. The Madras Penitentiary is situated to the north of these and extends as far as the cut connecting the Cooum and Cochrane's Canal. The Penitentiary faces east and opens on a small road connecting the Poonamallee Road and the Island. Going westwards along the Poonamallee Road, you get to Periamet, where, in former days, the Moors collected land custom. The principal inhabitants are Muhammadans dealing in skins and hides. The Naval Hospital Road where the Madras Land Custom House formerly stood is north and south. The Madras Medical Stores which now occupies the buildings of the Gun Carriage Factory opens into the road. At the end of this road is the Government Veterinary Hospital. The Dorseton Protestant College is very near. The portion of the city is Vepery—a residential suburb of Europeans and Anglo-Indians. It was granted to the English in 1643 by Nawab Muhammad Said. Vepery was the scene of an engagement between the French and the English in February 1759. The S. P. C. K. has established a printing press here. This Society began its educational work about the year 1717. Petrus Uscan of Marmalons Bridge fame had built a chapel at his own cost in Vepery, which the Company handed over to the Danish Mission to put down the influence of Catholics in Madras. On the site of this chapel St. Matthias' Church has been built. The S. P. G. maintains a school in Vepery.

The Madras School of Arts and Crafts established about the middle of the last century, is on the south side of Poommalai Road, to the west of it is the Scotch Kirk. It was built by the famous Engineer DeHarilland in 1831. The Church is of much architectural importance. Opposite to the Kirk and on the northern side of the road are the headquarters of the Madras Volunteer Guards. Randall's Road is on the west of this building. The Young Women's Christian Association is in Poommalai Road. The Madras Electric Tramway Company has its power station and shed on the Poommalai Road. For the greater part of the last century Poommalai Road was one of the favourite residential quarters of Europeans in Madras. Indians were also now moving to this road.

Passing the Church Missionary Society's Head-quarters, you come to the crossing of the road from Harris Bridge, which leads to Purasawalkum. This suburb was granted to Governor Higgason in 1698. It had a field redoubt of which there is no trace now.

A little further off on the Poommalai Road is "Ramamandiram" the residence of Rajah Sir Ramaswami Mudaliar's family. Landon's Garden and Dare's Garden are on this road, which here passes through Kilpauk another European residential suburb. Then the road goes out of the Municipal limits on to the military station of Poommalai.

Lying between the Beach on the east and Cochrane's Canal on the west and bounding the military limits of the Fort on the north and west is the most densely populated and busy suburb of Madras called Georgetown. This name was given to it in 1806 to commemorate the visit to Madras of H. M. George V as Prince of Wales. Before that it was called Black Town a name given to the Indian quarter of Fort St. George in the early days of the settlement. Then it was the appellation of the out-town which was practically the creation of the Company's Government here. When this out-town was pulled down in the middle of the 18th century the name Black Town survived. It was applied to Peddaseikpettah alone at first, Mukhaikpettah being then called Mahabata town. So called from the fact that when in 1740 the Mahabata threatened to attack Madras a field of fire 800 ft wide on the north and west side of old Black Town was cleared. The ground so cleared was called Mahabata ground. Two pettahs were separated by gardens and fields and the rivulet which had its course along the Broadway; when this physical separation disappeared owing to the reclamation of those lands and the formation of new streets, the two pettahs became one and the united town came to be called Black Town. Popham's Broadway, Davidson's Street, Stringer's Street, Umpherson's Street mark the spot which Stephen Popham reclaimed. The China Bazaar Road begins at Parry's Corner and goes westward crossing the Mint Street to the Wall Tax Road. When the China Bazaar came into existence it is not known that it existed so early as 1782. The formation of Popham's Broadway and the opening of shops of better class brought it into closer connection with them giving it a more respectable character. Peddaseikpettah means the town or suburb of Peddaseik. The head of the police in old Madras was called Peddaseik. The office was hereditary, the holder of which was sometimes called the Poligar of Madras. In the early years of this settlement this pettah was the fashionable suburb. The Governor's Garden house was at the southern end of it, on the site of which the present General Hospital has been erected. The Company's washing garden was situated in the north of this town. It was also called Cosmopolis from the colony of potters in the west of it near the canal. In 1774 there were 199 streets and 5,548 houses. The main street is Mint Street which runs through the whole length of the town. The southern portion of the street is occupied by Chettis. Langa Chetti castemmen Marwaris and Gujaratis live in the middle portion of it, which is hence known as Sowcarpet. The northern portion is occupied by various other castes. At the end of the street is the Government Printing Press in the building once occupied by the Madras Mint. The Seven Walls, which supplied water to the garrison and the Europeans in the Fort is there. Govindappa Naidu Street belongs to Komiti Chettis. The wealth of Madras may be said to be in these two streets. The Godown Street and Bunder Street are occupied by piece-goods merchants—mostly Muhammadans and petty cloth merchants. Pachayappa's College faces the Esplanade; a handsome structure on Grecian model. It is a first-grade College training students for the Arts degrees of the Madras University. The institution is the outcome of the charity of one Pachayappa, a merchant and 'dubash' of the Company's days. The Hall was built in about 1849. Stringer's Street, Davidson Street and parallel streets are occupied by various merchants and Bais dealing in all sorts of goods. Popham's Broadway is an important busy street. The street was laid out by Stephen Popham about the year 1782. It runs south to north from the Esplanade to the Black Town Wall. Before Popham reclaimed this area it was a marshy ground with slopes on either side the monsoon and drainage water forming a channel along the whole course of the Broadway. After Popham reclaimed this ground running up its level with mud from the Hog hill, houses were built and streets formed. There were big houses on either side of the Broadway but the channel was in existence until 1788 when Popham covered it in. Before 1788 the Broadway must have looked like a Venetian street only with this difference that the water in the Broadway channel would have been black sewage water! The Lucan Square which runs along this crowded part of the town is to the west of the road. Kotwalahadi, the biggest market for Madras is a few yards from here. Stephen Popham was a Solicitor. Mrs. Fay describes him as one of the most eccentric of beings. He is a perpetual projector, a rage whose exertions have frequently benefited society but seldom I believe, been productive of much advantage to themselves or their families. He is at present laying plans for building what is called The George Town to a great extent and confidently expects to realize an immense fortune. At the southern end of the Broadway on the eastern side was Signor Niccolao Masnold's garden. He was a Venetian physician who practised in Madras about 1800 after having seen service under the Mogul Emperors. His Storia De Mogor contains a record of his experiences in India. The Y.M.C.A. building fronts the Esplanade. It is a superb structure built entirely of the beautiful sandstone brought from a quarry forty miles north of Madras. The Armenian Street contains the Roman Catholic Cathedral which was erected by the Capuchins in 1778 and the Armenian Church. Many commercial firms have their offices in this street. The two Chetti streets, which are now being usurped by hardware merchants, lawyers and students, go up to the old north wall of Black Town. The enterprising Madakkottai Chetties have their quarters in Coval Merchant Street midway between the two streets towards the north end. This is surmised to be the site of an old pettah, Pagadalapetah or Coral Town. The Company of those days traded in corals. The Christian College with its hostels, Principal's House, Halls and Association Rooms occupies all the southern portion of these streets. Between Armenian Street and Thambu Chetty Street rises the grand building of the late Agra Bank (now owned by the Chartered Bank of India, China and Australia). Facing the College on the Esplanade is the statue of Dr. William Miller, C.I.E., the popular Missionary Educationist of Southern India.

On the Esplanade Maidan rise the grand pile of buildings of the High Court with the Madras Lighthouse erected on the central cupola; the old Lighthouse built of granite, a high column, elegant in design and execution, erected in 1844; the newly built Law College. The High Court was completed in 1892 and is a specimen of the Hindu Saracenic style of architecture. On the north side is the Rev. Dr. Miller's statue facing the Christian College. The Christian College, a large and successful missionary institution was founded in 1837 by the Rev. John Anderson. Adjoining the High Court Buildings is the Law College which was occupied in 1899. On the Esplanade has also been recently constructed the Central Exchange and Offices of the Madras Telephone Company. North is situated the suburb of Royapuram. A large community of Roman Catholic businessmen have long been living here. The shipping trade of the port of Madras has had to suffer not a little in the past by the opposition of this community. These Christians have built a Church out of their funds. The Madras Railway had its terminus in Royapuram some years ago. During the siege of Madras by the French in 1758-59 the enemy had erected works in Muthalpetah, one at Parry's Corner and the other south of it and the place was practically occupied by them. In 1774 there were in Muthalpetah 16 streets and 3,208 houses according to Popham's computation.

The Madras Beach is divided by the Fort St. George fortifications and military zone into two big divisions. The North Beach is the busiest portion of the city. The Madras Harbour and the works and the premises of Oil Companies cover even the sands. Olive's Battery was previously to the north of the Harbour. Facing the sea on the road are Parry & Co., the National Bank, the Imperial Bank of India, the General Post Office, Best & Co., Mercantile Bank Buildings, the Bank Buildings of the Indian Bank, the Sea Customs Office, the Bidden Home and a number of commercial firms. South of this range of big buildings come the High Court, and the Lighthouse and the old Lighthouse column then the Fort with the steeple of St. Mary's Church and the flagstaff, passing the Fort you get to the old Band stand which was the favourite resort in the evenings before the South Beach Road was formed. On this site there existed in Pitt's time a fishermen's hamlet. Naggar Bridge reconstructed quite recently spans the Cooum at its mouth. Except during the rainy season a bar of sand forms itself there and closes the mouth of the river whose current is not strong enough to force its way through the bar into the sea. To prevent the stench from the silvery Cooum becoming a nuisance during the hot season the bar is opened artificially and sea water is let in by the tidal action. The Marina on the South Beach is a creation of the Governor, Sir M. E. Grant Duff. He himself described it as 'one of the most beautiful promenades in the world'. It runs along the sea front up to the suburb of San Thome. The Octagonal Marine Villa, where the Madras University Library is to be newly constructed, the Senate House designed by Ohlsholm and Queen Victoria's statue by its side, the Chepauk Palace of the Nawab of Arcot (now used as the office of the Board of Revenue) which was constructed about 1765, the Public Works Office, the Presidency College designed by B. F. Ohlsholm, the Ice House built about 1840 to store natural ice which came from America (now the Widows' Home), the Queen Mary's College, the Copper House (now part of the Queen Mary's College for Women), the old Moosum Temple (now the office of the Inspector-General of Police) and the San Thome Cathedral are on the sea front on the South Beach Road and give to the city grandeur and architectural richness. Opposite the Presidency College, on the beach, is the Aquarium, which contains an interesting and representative collection of the fish found in Madras waters.

In the compound of the Senate House and facing the sea are the statues of two great Indian statesmen Mr. V. Krishnaswami Aiyar and Mr. G. K. Gokhale.

The Senate House, offices of the Board of Revenue, the Chief Engineer's Office and the Presidency College are all situated in the Chepauk Park, which is divided into two halves by the Buckingham Canal running north and south the whole length of Madras. Portions of the offices of the Board of Revenue formed the Old Chepauk Palace built by the Nawab Wallajah in 1770 and became eschewed to the Government on the death of the last titular Nawab of the Carnatic in 1855. The other and western portion is occupied by the Madras Cricket Club Ground and Pavilion, the Victoria Hostel for students erected by public subscriptions and managed by a Committee and the Government Hospital for Women, which was built by the Raja of Venkatagiri and public subscriptions and opened in 1890 and taken over by the Government recently.

San Thome was founded by the Portuguese about 1538. Roman Catholic Christians have long associated this town with the Apostle St. Thomas. Tradition asserts that he was buried in San Thome and his tomb is still shown. Leaving this as a debatable matter not pertinent to the founding of the town and its growth, an examination of the records of the 16th and 17th centuries and the contemporary accounts of European travellers point to 1538 as the probable date of its founding. A church was at first built with a small monastery attached to it. It is the oldest European structure in India. Gradually a town grew up around it. In 1556 Rana Raja of Vijayanagar came here in great hopes of plunder, not finding it—as he had expected—he left the place in peace. It rose to importance between 1597 and 1608. The fame and popularity of the place increased. More churches were built. It enjoyed a large trade. Master Omer, Frederick described it in 1607 as "the fairest in all that part of the Indies" Balbi, a Venetian dealer in guns, who visited the place in 1682, refers to its fortifications. Then began its decline. In 1616 the inhabitants were found to be killing one another without any regard for human or divine laws or any shame, so that even the Moors and Gentiles abandoned their wickedness. The occasion was what they call Pointe of Honour. De Bazezede's account (1685) refers to the city being "continually harassed by the Hollanders" with the result that it was reduced both in population and commerce. When the English established their settlement at Madras the Portuguese readily accepted the English invitation to settle in their place. Its power had waned so much that in 1662 when it was threatened by the Dutch and besieged by Golconda, it yielded to the Moslem power, who held it for 11 years. Dominic Navarette a Spanish priest who in 1693 came to San Thome, Madras, says: 'We went to see the city of St. Thomas, the Moors would not let us in. From the gate we saw some good buildings the walls were very high. A gentleman that was with us lamented that loss very much. The English are not so strong at Madras as they yet they hold it and are likely so to do. What signifies walls and bulwarks where there is no Government.' How pathetic and true this remark! In 1678 the Mooslems were ousted by the French who occupied it till August 1674. The two years of French occupation was a period of a prolonged and continuous blockade by the Dutch and Mooslems. The Dutch and the English fearing French designs to regain San Thome suggested to the Mooslem the destruction of the whole town. But the Mooslem Governor of the town would not entertain any proposal to destroy so fine a town. Its fortifications, however, were partly demolished in 1675. The King of Golconda leased the place to Cassim Verona. But the Portuguese in August 1698 recaptured it and took on lease from the Mogul. In 1697 its fortifications were pulled down by Muhammadans. An earthen rampart was built by them in 1704. The town was granted to the English by Muhammad Ali and English colours were hoisted there on 2nd October 1749. Benjamin Holme planned a redoubt at San Thome in the house now called Leth Castle. The redoubt is now a ruined building with massive walls of brick. The old St. Thomas Cathedral has been recently replaced by a new structure. Owing to the convenient distance from Fort St. George, San Thome offered to the enemies of the English and deserters a safe retreat before the town came into English possession.

It is now more than 278 years since the English formed a settlement in Port St. George. Their possession was only interrupted for about three years (Sep. 10 1746 to Aug. 18, 1749) when the French occupied it. From 1702 up till 1914 it had not been attacked from outside enemies, though there were times of anxiety during Tipu's wars, the Mahratte wars, Pindari incursions and the great Indian Mutiny. Before that, the Fort was frequently threatened. The proximity of San Thome was the source of trouble with the Portuguese in the earlier years. Between the years 1655 and 1667 Fort St. George suffered from Muhammadan incursions and the siege of Madras by Krishnappa Nair. In 1670 Madras was blockaded by a General of Nawab Nizam Khan. The blockade of Madras by the Dutch during the second siege of San Thome in 1678 extended even to Port St. George. Lingappa Governor of Poonamallee, stopped all provisions and ordered a strict blockade of the Fort in 1676.

Daud Khan was hovering round the place in 1700 and started a regular blockade which lasted for four months in 1704. The French attacked and took Madras in 1746 and again besieged the Fort in December 1786, the siege continuing up to the middle of the following February. Tipu at the head of his cavalry approached so near as Chintadripet and raided the suburbs in 1787. Early in 1769 Haidar Ali came to the Mount with no friendly intentions and Madras was saved from an attack by the peace which was at once concluded by Dupre at St. Thomas' Mount. Again in 1710 Haidar raided St. Thome, Trichinopoly and the Choultry plain. For the last time the Fort was threatened by Haidar's horse in 1781, when St. Thome was plundered. These incursions and raids always resulted in making the fort stronger and better fortified.

The climate of Madras has been well described as three months hot and nine months hotter. Thomas Bowrey who visited Madras 1669 described it as "not at any time very cold or on the contrary very hot, having the full benefit of all sea breezes of wind but in these following months, May and June, although there be for the most part fresh gales, yet it is something sultry, which may most of all be alleged to the wind, itself more than to the heat of the sun." The mean temperature for the whole year is 83°, for the cooler months of December and January 76°, and for the hottest months of May and June 80°. The extremes are 64° in January and 110° in June. The annual rainfall based on the figures for 85 years is 49 inches. Like other places on the Bay of Bengal, Madras is liable to severe cyclones. The cyclone of October 1746 damaged the French fleet severely, that of 1783 deprived the town of rice and created a famine. The city cannot boast that it is healthy to native life, though to Europeans it is salubrious enough. European travellers have all praised its healthiness; Captain Roger Middleton described it "as a place healthful, using all kinds of recreation save bounds." Mrs. Kinderley wrote in 1766: "the heat here is excessive but the climate for India is esteemed healthy, and people frequently come here for the recovery of their health from Bengal, for the soil is dry and the benefit of the sea breeze, which constantly blows from between twelve and one of noon till the same time at night, is a great advantage." Mr. Beauchamp in 1776 quoted with approval the description of Madras as "the Montpellier of the East." These impressions were formed in the cool garden houses of Madras. Quite a different impression will be formed by a visit to the Indian quarters of the City. The tanks to the west and the rice fields within its limits keep the subsoil water at a high level. About the sanitary condition of the George Town, Mr. Popham wrote in 1871, "There are no regular drains to carry off water or any well or sewer or other provision made to carry off the ordure, etc., of each house. The consequence is that, exclusive of the effect of the monsoon on the streets, each day's consumption is every family rendered them disagreeable to passengers, and the digestion of the day is thrown on the first rubbish spot where the menial servants can empty with impunity." Things had not improved in the early years of the last century for sanitation was not insisted by the people nor by the authorities of the day. Presentment of the grand Jury refer to the very defective condition of the drainage of the town. But for the warning given by stomach and odour, people would not have attended to the improvement of drains. What Popham said of his time is true even to-day in some of the smaller streets of Madras. The utilization of the Cooum as a drainage channel is a contributory cause to the bad health of the town. Now that sanitation has been recognised as a science Madras may soon hope to see an improvement in its public health.

The internal administration of the city is in the hands of the Municipal Corporation, which consists of a President elected by the members of the Corporation. The President is assisted in his executive work by an Engineer, a Health Officer and a Revenue Officer. Its working is governed by a Legislative enactment. The history of this Municipal Government is full of interest, and very much resembles that of any English Municipal Institution with some features of Indian village government.

Madras, like any other South Indian village had its headman or adbhikari, its accountant or Kanakapillai and its watchman or Peddanak. In the early years of the English settlement, the native adbhikari was the governor of the town and administered justice to the Indian inhabitants. The incumbent was sometimes an Indian and sometimes a European. He held his court at the choultry or Town house. When in 1661 the Agent became Governor with judicial powers in consequence of the irregular exercise of powers by the adbhikari the office of adbhikari ceased to exist. The Kanakapillai or Town Kanakapillai was his chief assistant and kept the Land Registers and maintained the revenue accounts. The choultry was a court of petty causes, a custom house, and a Registration Office for the record of sales of real property and for the licensing of slaves. The Peddanak was the head watchman with a number of tallies to assist him. He arrested wrong-doers, confined them in gaols pending their trial before the Governor and in case of thefts or robberies he was to compensate the losers. The offices were all hereditary. When the adbhikari ceased to exist there remained only two offices, the Town Kanakapillai and the Peddanak. The Town Kanakapillai's office was suspended in 1693 in deference to the wishes of the Company.

The European adbhikari (Agent and Governor) being an Englishman proposed in Aug. 1678 'after the manner in England a way for keeping the town clean by taxing every house at a moderate rate, and to appoint a scavenger to collect said moneys and therewith to hire coolies to carry away the dirt and filth which, as in all other towns in these countries, lies in the streets very offensively.' The conservancy rate was 1 to 1 fanam per house; the total assessment was 1104 fanams. Two-thirds of it went to pay the wages of four coolies and one-third to the Town scavenger or Kanakapillai. The Christian town was to pay the cost of its conservancy and the George Town to meet its cost. About the end of the same year a clerk of the market was appointed to prevent frauds and abuses in weights and measures and to preserve good order in the market on a monthly pay of 160 fanams. In this imposition of a tax on the people though the people might have agreed to pay the contribution, the Governor and Council did an act not sanctioned by the Charter or Laws of England. But it passed unquestioned for many years.

The recognition of the city as a body corporate and politic with rights and privileges to administer its own affairs independent of outside control is a growth of the middle ages in Europe. The Dutch had extended this system to their possessions in the East, including India. At the instance apparently of Sir Josias Child, who was an admirer and advocate of the colonial policy of the Dutch and directed the policy of the Company at home, a charter was issued by the Company under the authority given to it by the Royal Charters by which the 'Town of Fort St. George (commonly called the Christian Town) and city of Madraspatnam and all the Territories hereto belonging not exceeding the distance of ten miles from Fort St. George was constituted a corporation by the name and title of Mayor and Aldermen and Burgeesses.' The Mayor and Aldermen and Burgeesses were constituted a body corporate and politic. A very important feature was that the Burgeesses were representatives of the several castes and communities in the Town. The Mayor and Aldermen were a Court of record, the Mayor and 3 senior Aldermen being Justices of the Peace. The Mayor's Court had jurisdiction over Civil Suits and offences. The Corporation had other duties: building a Town Hall, Schools, common Shoars (sewers) for the ornament and healthfulness of the place etc. and regulating and passing the streets and lanes in town. The building of a Hospital and the walling of the town would seem to have been included in the scope. The Charter came into force on September 29, 1715. But funds had not been provided to carry out these works until May 1690, when the petty taxes of paddy tolls, measuring and weighing duties and brokerage and the Government share were assigned to it. The Corporation slept over this business till 1691, when Governor Yale demanded the restoration of the revenues collected by the Corporation. The Corporation in 1693 wanted the assignment of taxes (for licensing of public houses etc.) in place of the measurers' duties which had been taken away from it. The paving of streets was begun in 1693. Footways were paved with brick and roadways were of sand. The cost was met by assessment on houses in proportion to the area of pavement in front of each house. Up to 1694 scavenger's rates were being collected by a Company's official. In December it was decided to transfer it to the Corporation subject to the condition that the conservancy of the town was managed by the Corporation. In 1696 the Company directed that the Town Kanakapillai's duty at 10 fanams on every pagoda of custom collected be granted for ever to the Corporation for beautifying and adorning the town with useful and necessary buildings. It was, however, being collected by the Government and appropriated for other purposes. In 1725 the Corporation complained of lack of sufficient funds to carry out their objects; and the Government handed over to it the surplus funds it had under Town Kanakapillai's duties. Among the works which the Corporation carried out were bridges, reclamation of the Island paving with bricks the roads in the white town, repairing banks, sinking of wells, etc.

The Charter of 1726 excluded heads of castes and communities and so deprived the Corporation of its representative character. There were no Indians or members of the other communities among the Aldermen to decide cases between natives. It was designed for the government of Europeans primarily. The charges of Mayor's Court were met from the collection of weighing and measuring duties and from fines. A contribution to the Charity School was also being paid by the Corporation.

In Governor G. M. Pitt's time there were again complaints from the Corporation of insufficiency of income. The polling of the George Town had come for consideration before G. M. Pitt, and he referred the Bench-General to censure the town into proper discipline. In 1758 the number of conservancy carts was increased from 18 to 20. In 1764 the Government resumed all the duties and paid instead 50 pagodes per mensem. Under the Charter of 1768, the Mayor's Court could exercise civil jurisdiction over natives only in cases in which they had agreed to abide by its award. The exclusion of the inhabitants from the Charter took away the Municipal character of the Mayor and Aldermen, who constituted merely a judicial tribunal with jurisdiction over some special communities.

The enforcement of the regulations for the conservancy of towns is best done by Police constabulary. The organization and reform of the Police was therefore of primary importance in civic progress. Governor Thomas Duple turned his attention to the subject. He separated the Police from the other affairs of the settlement. The President and Council sat as a Board of Police. Streets were paved under the orders of this Board, the house-holders paying the cost of portions adjacent to their properties and the Government the remainder; public lamps were erected in the Fort and the George Town regulations were framed for the holding of markets, the sale of fish was brought under control; a regulation for the hire of servants, etc., was passed; and a Court was established to settle cases in which customs of the natives were in dispute. This Board existed only a little more than twelve months. In the first place, the constitution of this Board was according to the best legal opinion adversus vires and illegal, and repugnant to the Charter; and one Mr. O. Bromley, Attorney in Madras, led the opposition to Government's action. There were external dangers from foreign enemies which occupied the attention of the President and Council. To make matters worse the Board came into collision with the Mayor's Court. These causes led to the dissolution of the Board on March 18, 1771. In 1776 the Company's Scavenger issued regulations for the prevention of nuisance in George Town; carts and cows not to be kept in the streets; each house to have a cesspool fish to be sold in a separate market. There were 70 scavenging carts. A native overseer for the market was appointed in 1777; prices of provisions were regulated; and the hire of palanquin boys was fixed. A guard and police posts were attached to the Choultry's office to prevent riots, to maintain peace or order in the markets and streets, and to patrol the streets in the nights. Three years later a Superintendent of Police was appointed.

In 1788, the heavy arrears in the collection of scavenger's rate and the inadequate conservancy of George Town were reported to Government. "A number of the inhabitants instead of keeping muck in their backyards with channels to convey the muddy water thereto, let it pass into the open streets, which not only rendered it very offensive but extremely unwholesome." The Bench-General and Scavenger to Government despaired of any success in sanitation in these circumstances. The unwillingness to pay taxes and the resistance to this impost by the lawyers and merchants was becoming a standing feature and a scandal. The Supreme Court at Calcutta gave their decision against the Government as regards their right to levy rates. Lord Macartney assembled the inhabitants and obtained their consent to the tax,—the consent being subject to the appointment of a native scavenger. There were now 90 carts where 900 would just meet the need. Mr. J. Daniell thus described the state of the town in 1785: "It is even become unwholesome to reside in the George Town. The streets in time of rain are deep canals of water, and many of the houses on each side of these canals are sunk beneath the lumps of rubbish and filth collected there, from whose exhalations after rain it is rendered dangerous even to the inhabitants accustomed to it." The contract system of cleaning the streets was introduced in 1786, the contractor agreeing to keep 70 carts 130 bullocks and 80 bullocks. Popham's plan for the establishment of a Police for the better government and regulation of the Town was before Council. The residents complained of dearth of provisions, frauds by dealers, the dishonesty of servants, artificers, coolies, etc., bad roads, nuisance in the streets, and robberies and thefts. A committee was appointed to consider the matter and decide remedies. The founding of a general market was recommended; the scavenger's rate voluntarily paid by the people was to be continued; but they could make no recommendation as regards Police—the very word "Police" was taboo to the hair-splitting lawyers and to the Company. They recommended the retention of the appointments of kotwal and scavenger and the appointment of a committee of Police.

In August 1786 the Government appointed a Committee of "Regulation" avoiding the word of office. The maintenance and repair of roads were placed in charge of a superintendent of company's gardens, a new appointment created in December. In the following year Kotwalchavadi was built and a regulation of prices of provisions, etc., was passed. The law officers in England pronounced against the scavenging rate, which was therefore suspended in December 1790. The Company at the same time applied to the Government for Parliamentary sanction to levy taxes. In 1791 the Committee of Regulation was abolished as also the offices of scavenger and kotwal. At length the long desired power was given by an Act of George III. Additional Justices of the Peace could be appointed by the Governor-General. A Justices' department was created. The Justices had judicial and administrative functions.

The Statute legalized the collection of assessment on houses and lands in the Presidency Towns for expenditure upon their good order and Government. Municipal Government proper in Madras began only in 1794. The Justices in Session had a sort of control over the local Police; they collected the assessment, attended to the making and maintenance of roads, the sanitation of the town. Town cleansing was effected by contract under the control of two officers called "Surveyors and Collectors of assessment." The contractor maintained 6 carts for the Fort and 64 carts for the Black Town. In 1797 the inhabitants represented that they would have "no more cleaning and repairs,"—so much was the popular unwillingness to be controlled or interfered with, even though it concerned such a vital matter as sanitation. Though a legal basis was given by this Act, the administration of the Justices in Session was not such smooth sailing as one would expect. The Town Police or Police magist had office under a new code from Lord Robert. A Police Committee was instituted by Lord Hobart to remedy the defect in the Charter of 1783 which prevented the Mayor's Court from interfering with Police administration. In 1806 the policing of the town was reformed, and a Superintendent of Police was placed at its head. This officer later on became the Chief Presidency Magistrate. The cost of the Police was a Municipal charge for some years. Now the Police are paid by Government. Sir William Robinson reorganised the whole Police in 1886. The finances of the Justices in Session were never quite equal to the burdens thrown on them and Government had often to contribute to its fund. The market was also under the control of the Police Committee of Lord Hobart. The supply of provisions was done by contract for some time until the complaints of mismanagement of the market by the Police reached Government. It is open to any person to sell provisions provided he satisfies rules laid down by the Sanitary Department of the Municipality. Food supply has been much improved by the establishment of the Moore Market. The making and repair of roads were attended to by the Justices in Session, the Lottery Committee and the Military Department. Street lighting was not receiving much attention from the Justices.

The drainage of the City consisted in the beginning of a few open drains with a sewer constructed later on. That system, modified and improved, continued very long. The underground system gave hopes in the beginning. The city is waiting to see what good it will do. The Seven Wells supplied water to the Fort and the shipping and to a few residents who chose to have the benefit of good water by paying for it. The Red Hills water supply scheme intended to supply water to the whole city was begun only in 1868, and completed in 1873. From 1880 onwards a number of legislative enactments have slowly improved the Municipal Government of the City and brought it to the present state. The City of Madras has an area of 27 square miles and any improvement of this extensive city means large expenditure of money which the City is not able to bear. The extent of the town, the sea breeze, the many large open spaces within it and the Marinas, the park-like residences of its richer inhabitants, the absence of large mills and industries, and the Red Hills water supply all contribute to minimise the evils due to defective sanitary arrangements. The death rate averages 40 per thousand per annum. It usually increases during the cold and rainy season, and is at its minimum during the dry hot months of April, May and June. The population is liable to periodical visitations of cholera and small-pox. Elephantiasis and leprosy are endemic diseases on the coastline; the former is generally seen in the form known as 'Cochin' or 'elephant leg' (Elephantiasis). The land rises slightly as the distance from the sea increases, but in no part of the municipal limits is the elevation more than 34 feet above the sea, while in many thickly-populated neighbourhoods the levels are so low as to offer serious obstacles to drainage. The new drainage works are expected to do much for the sanitation of the City. The chief outlets for the discharge of excessive rainfall are the Cooum River, the main drain of Georgetown, and two minor channels between the Cooum and San Thome. The heaviest rainfall usually occurs during the north-east monsoon as much as 18 inches having been known to fall within 34 hours. The locality of the town is liable to prolonged periods of drought as well as to heavy floods.

This short history of Madras would hardly be complete without alluding to the fact that it is the only city in India that has actually been under bombardment during the Great War. On the evening of September 23rd, 1914, the German cruiser 'Emden' visited Madras and opened fire on the city. Several people were killed and injured and much damage was done to the large oil installation in the Harbour premises. A commemorative stone has been placed in the High Court wall, in North Beach Road, in the spot where a large shell from one of the 'Emden's' guns exploded.

Neighbouring Places of Interest.

RED HILLS

The native name of this locality is CoR Mathavaram. The village lies in a north-westerly direction about 10 miles distant from Madras. The English name is probably derived from the colour of the soil and the undulating appearance of the country, as there are no hills here in the ordinary acceptance of the term. The formation known as laterite, which is almost peculiar to India has generally the appearance of a soil. In its normal form it is a porous argillaceous rock much impregnated with iron peroxide. It is mottled with various tints of brown, red and yellow, and a considerable proportion sometimes consists of white clay. It hardens on exposure and makes a useful building stone. Some of it has recently been shown to contain a large percentage of hydrates of alumina, the ores from which aluminium is made. This place furnished laterite for the building of Cogan and Day's Fort St. George. Until about the middle of the 18th century, this stone was being quarried by the Company people under an agreement with the owner of Palloor—'the country where the Iron Stone grows'—a village at the Red Hills. Laterite is not now used for building in Madras; it served as a good material for metalling the roads with. One of the earliest railway schemes in the Presidency is connected with the Red Hills. A light railway was in the early part of the last century constructed from the Red Hills to bring into the City the laterite required for road-making. A large lake was the centre of attraction in former times, and in its vicinity were several houses belonging to inhabitants of Madras. The aspect of the place has now, however, entirely changed since it has become the fountain head of the Madras Water Works. The Red Hills Lake has a capacity of 100 million cubic yards; all the water is not available for supply owing to the low situation of the lake. The average annual supply is 415 million cubic feet, which is insufficient for the needs of the City. The Corporation of Madras is contemplating pumping the water to the top of a ridge, 90 feet above sea level near the lake, to be supplied from thence to the City. This has not yet been done, but the supply has been materially improved by elevated filtering beds, opened a few years ago. Before railroads made it an easy matter to go for change of scene and air to Bangalore, The Nilgiris or Shivaroy and other outlying salubrious stations, the Red Hills and Sinner had strong attractions for the citizens of Madras. They were glad occasionally to escape from the heat and dust of the City and to enjoy the fresh breezes, boating, bathing and other amusements available at these two places. A few people even resided permanently there, coming into Madras during the day for business and returning the night. Very close to the lake is Commur, a railway station. The water-works channel runs very near this place where there is a temple and tank. Drinking water is taken from this tank to Madras by many native residents. Many native week-enders resort to this village, which is provided with cottages.

ENMORE

This place is about 10 miles from the Fort in a northeasterly direction and may be reached either by a boat plying over the Buckingham Canal, or by the ordinary carriage road through Tondiarpet and Tiravotmyr or by the East Coast Railway. Its Tamil name is Kuttivakam. It was given to Governor Pitt in 1708 by Dhaud Khan. Its chief attraction is a large salt-water lake in which visitors bathe, fish and sail. Even so early as 1746 it was one of the three places outside Madras where the Company's servants had their country residence. It has been the scene of many regattas. The gayest time that Enmore has known was perhaps when Sir Henry Pottinger was Governor of Madras. He had a great liking for the place, and built there a commodious bungalow for his own use, which he generally occupied during the hot season. Madras society then frequently visited the place and the old Enmore Club House was seldom unoccupied by its members who were always notable for their hospitality. The tide of fashion has since ebbed away from Enmore owing to the accessibility of other stations by railway. The Madras Development Co. are now trying to bring the place to its former glory by acquiring and keeping under proper repairs the old Historical buildings and by constructing new residences at Enmore and Brnavor. The lake contains excellent fish and oysters, and salt of a very superior quality is gathered from numerous pans, situated close to the creeks or inlets from the sea, the crystals are large and clear. It is shipped in large quantities to Calcutta and other ports. The sand-dunes along the coast here have been converted into casuarina plantations by private persons. The formation of backwaters here and at Pulicat is due to the sand laden currents of the sea preventing the discharge into the sea of the water and salt of the sluggish rivers of the Chingleput District. Further north lie Poothooppak and Chintamani. The latter place contains the remains of a Hindu temple almost entirely embedded in sand, and at the former are some large plantations of casuarina belonging to private individuals.

PULICAT

The village is an old Dutch settlement formed about 1609. The Dutch called their fort Gekria. After 1871 and until it was finally ceded to Great Britain in 1825 it was sometimes in the possession of the English and sometimes in that of the Dutch. It was once a sanatorium much frequented by residents of Madras, but the prevalence of malaria has deprived it of its popularity. Lord William Bentinck once had a house at this place. It is chiefly inhabited by Labbays and low-caste Hindus. The wealthier inhabitants carry on trade with Singapore and Malacca, and the common people are chiefly fishermen. Scarcely any trace is left of the old Dutch fort but the ancient burial-ground preserved from decay by Sir C. Trevelyan when Governor of Madras contains many well-cut tomb stones some of them nearly 300 years old. Roman Catholics resort to this place in great numbers on certain of the Church's festivals. The distance from Madras is by canal 35 miles. Visitors to Enmore make excursions to Pulicat by boat a pleasant journey of five or six hours. The lake which lies between Cooromandel and Pulicat named after the latter place, is a beautiful expanse of water about 37 miles in length and from 3 to 11 miles in breadth.

COOROMANDEL

This retreat is separated from Pulicat by the lake just named and is bounded on the east by the sea. It is a pleasant place, and like Enmore, is visited during the hot season. The etymology of the name of this place has been variously explained, but it appears to be a corruption of karimann (black sand) the black sand so extensively used in former days in public offices and by the people instead of blotting paper. 'Cooromandel, as applied to the East Coast, is said to be derived from Choolaman Salaman, i.e. the region of the Cholas, an ancient dynasty who at one time inhabited this part of India. This village called in Persian correspondence Shamaahapulli was granted in 1793 by Nawab Wajajah to one Mahudin Muhammad Abu Bakar for performing the duties of Kasi in Madras etc. His grandfather was appointed as Mullia in the Mosque in George Town in 1694. There are a few houses here furnished and favourably situated which may be occupied on payment of a monthly or daily rent. The population here too consists almost entirely of low-caste Sudras, Pariahs and Labbays numbering in all about 3,000.

LITTLE MOUNT

About four miles south of St. George's Cathedral and near the Marmalong Bridge is a spur forming what is familiarly known as the Little Mount. Tradition says that in the cave on the Little Mount St. Thomas the Apostle hid himself to escape persecution and that he cleaved the rock with a rod in his hand and obtained water from the cleft to drink, and that pursued there by his enemies he left his footprint at the foot of the hill and escaped to the Great Mount or St. Thomas' Mount. The church is dedicated to St. Thomas. A festival in connection with it is annually celebrated. A great throng of people composed of the middle and lower classes generally collect to witness the usual church processions, etc., which appear to cause great excitement. Under the arches of the Marmalong bridge may be observed various groups of excursionists, who make this their temporary abode during the close of the festival, which, as a rule, lasts for a period of ten days. There is not, however, anything historical attaching to the place and beyond the festival above referred to it is of little importance. Many of the company's servants resided in bungalows at the foot of the Little Mount. People are now resorting to the place gradually in numbers and building other bungalows for permanent habitation.

GUILDY

A little further south lies Guildy, which may be reached by a short drive from the Marmalong Bridge. At Guildy is the Governor's country-seat. It is in many respects superior to the Government House at Madras, and owes its modern form to Lord Ephraïm. The park surrounding Government House is very extensive and admirably laid out. A broad and well formed road runs direct from the main entrance which presents the facade to full view. At Guildy is the Madras Race Course, one of the best in Southern India, and here also is the principal meet of the Madras Hounds.

ST THOMAS' MOUNT

Passing over the Marmalong Bridge and turning to the right, a drive of 8 miles along a well-laid out road, beautifully shaded by an avenue of banyan trees will bring the visitor to St. Thomas' Mount, familiarly known as The Mount. Indians call it Parangimalai. This is an isolated cliff of green stone and syenite, about 330 feet above the level of the sea.

The summit of the Mount is crowned by an old Roman Catholic Church, called the "Exposition of the Blessed Virgin." The building, erected in 1547, measures 199 feet by 57 feet and belongs now to the Portuguese Mission in the diocese of Mylapore. Behind the altar of this church is a curiously carved stone cross with a very ancient inscription which Dr. Burnell refers back to A. D. 800; it is attributed to Nestorians. Translated into English, this inscription reads—"Who believes in the Messiah and in God above and in the Holy Ghost, is a favour with Him who bore the Cross." In 1637 there was said to be a tree on the top of the Mount which is called "Arbor triste," that seemed not to flourish all the day long, but from sunset till sunrise it is exceedingly full of white blossoms, which withered and fell at mid-day; the very leaves also shut themselves up in the day time. The Mount may be ascended for a general panoramic view of the cantonment and parade-ground of the artillery, which is always quartered here. The ascent is made by a flight of some 300 steps built by the famous Armenian Petrus Ussan at his own cost. There is also a flagstaff which, used to be a landmark for vessels standing in for Madras from the south.

So early as 1651 Agent Greenhill came to St. Thomas' Mount for hawking. Streyneham Master with a party came here in 1678 to take the fresh air at St. Thomas' Mount. In 1686 the Council purchased a garden house it being a very commodious and pleasant place for sickly people to recover their healths at and is often made use of for that purpose. In 1755 at the time of the siege of Madras there were about a dozen garden-houses at the foot on the road to Madras, one of them belonging to General Stringer Lawrence. The French plundered and destroyed his house and effects for which he was given compensation by the Company. St. Thomas' Mount exercised a great fascination on the European residents of Madras in the middle of the eighteenth century. Eyles Irwin a young civil servant wrote a poem in 1774 entitled "St. Thomas' Mount," the opening lines of which are:—

'Were thou Saint Thomas, rearest thy sacred bright,
Successive beauties trick the ravished sight;
These orange-grove diffuse their sweets around,
And flowerets paint the variegated ground;
On every side ten thousand blooms appear,
Like luna circled in her starry sphere."

Lord Pigot was kept a prisoner at St. Thomas' Mount in the house of Colonel Horne who was in charge of the prisoner. The Mount became the gayest place on the Coast, and on Christmas and New Year's day as well as on Twelfth night the balls given by Messrs. Monckton, Russell and Stone were uncommonly splendid. St. Thomas' Mount was the scene of one of the fiercest struggles of the Franco-British War in India on February 7th 1780, between Colonel O'Halland on one side and Lally on the other. In 1774 it became the head-quarters of the Madras Artillery.

The Cantonment below the hill contains some very handsome buildings—among them the various barracks for the Artillery, etc. The garrison Church, which is a very handsome ecclesiastical building dedicated to St. Thomas, is said to be a copy of the historical church of St. Clement Danes, Strand, London. It was built by Government in the years 1825-26, at a cost of Rs. 48,714, and was consecrated on October 31, 1830. It will accommodate 600 worshippers. The church contains many well executed and interesting memorials of Royal Artillery officers, the most noteworthy being the famous monument to the memory of Colonel Noble, the work of the eminent sculptor, Chantrey. Over the altar there is a large painting representing the appearance of Our Lord to St. Thomas, this was painted in 1831 by Lieut-Colonel J. B. Richardson, R.A., and presented by him to the church. In the chancel of the church there is some excellent carving in wood, the work of the Rev James Sharp, a former chaplain of St. Thomas' Mount. In the churchyard there is a handsome cenotaph to the memory of General S. J. Danham, a distinguished Artillery officer. The mess house of the Royal Artillery is perhaps one of the most handsome of the many excellent officers' mess houses in India.

An excellent Soldiers' Institute is located at St. Thomas' Mount and is much used by the troops in the garrison. The Institute was built from funds collected by the Rev Canon A. H. B. Britten, M.A., to whose memory the great Soldiers' Institute at Secunderabad is entirely due. The Institute comprises a large concert hall a billiard room a library reading recreation and game rooms, a bar, supper rooms, rooms for the Superintendent, and a lavatory, with hot and cold baths. Detached from the main building is a Soldiers' Chapel or Devotional Room and still farther away a commodious house for the accommodation of the ladies who are responsible for the internal economy of the Institute. About four acres of land are laid out for the outdoor recreation of the men. Experience has proved how much the soldiers appreciate these Institutes, which are free and open without question to any man wearing the King's uniform. There are also a well-built Wesleyan and two Roman Catholic chapels.

POONAMALLUR.

This old settlement for British troops, is situated about 18 miles south-west of Madras. It can be reached in about two hours' drive along a well macadamised road, or by rail via Avadi. The station is by its good drainage and general salubrity well suited for a convalescent depot. The small permanent European population of the place are chiefly pensioners. There is a Cantonment Magistrate's and a District Munsiff's Court here. A large and handsome hospital has been erected at the station.

This town was the capital of a local chief, styled Naick, who was subordinate to the fugitive Vijayanagar King at Chandragiri. It was a Naick of this place who made overtures to Francis Day for the settlement of the English in his territory and granted the present site of Fort St. George with certain privileges to build a fort and to carry on trade. Subsequently a sowda was granted by the Rajah of Chandragiri which made Madras independent of the Naick of this place. The Naick at that time belonged to the Damarla family which is now represented by the Rajah of Kalasiri. His ancestors were not friendly to the English and frequently harassed the settlement by stopping provisions, etc. going to it. The Brahmin Naick of this place in Sivaramam Master's time was Fodele Lingappa, who came to be the Nawab (or Governor) of the Carnatic. The place was threatened by Sivaji in 1676 and plundered by the Mahabates in 1688. The Poonamallik District was granted to the British by the Nawab in 1790. The place became a military station in September 1777. To the east of the present Cantonment is the old Fort now occupied by warehouses, hospital, etc.

MAHABALIPURAM

The city of the great Bali known familiarly to the English as the Seven Pagodas is situated on the coast about 38 miles south of Madras and about 8 miles north of Sadras. It is one of the most interesting and to archaeologists it is one of the most important spots in Southern India. The antiquities of the place may be divided into three groups—(1) the 5 rishas to the south of the village, belonging probably to the latest Buddhist period; (2) the cave temples menolithio figures, carvings, and sculptures west of the village, probably of the fifth or sixth century A.D. (these contain some marvellous carvings, ranking with those of Ellora and Elephanta); (3) the more modern temples of Vishnu and Siva the latter being washed by the sea. To these last two with five other pagodas buried (according to tradition) under the sea, the place owes its English name. Quite a host of writers have described and discussed the date of these structures. Major M. W. Carr, C. B. Croft, Sir Walter Elliot, Robert Sewall, James Ferguson and others. Still no final word has yet been said. Students of Indian art and religion have found expression in these ancient monuments which have therefore to be studied by the natives of the country and their meaning as they have felt it explained. The new school of Dr. Ananda Coomaraswami have not told the world what they have to say. The ancient monuments and scriptures of India have yet to reveal their secrets of India's past. A number of coins of all ages have been found in the neighbourhood among others Roman, Chinese and Persian. In the neighbourhood there is a Brahmin village and an excellent new rest-house affording accommodation for six persons, eggs fowls sea-fish and milk are always to be got. A visit to this place will well repay those who take an interest in mythological and antiquarian subjects. The journey can be made in a few hours with ease and comfort by the Buckingham Canal. There is a good metalled road from Chingleput Railway Station (Refreshment Rooms) to Sadras Bridge (18 miles) where boats are taken. The journey is also often made from Madras by the Buckingham Canal apply for boats to the Wharf Superintendent, the Bann Madras.

SADRAS

Sadras, which can also be reached by the same canal is an old Dutch settlement formed in the year 1647. Sadras is sixteen miles by road from Chingleput and is situated on the Coast and must have been, during its occupation by the Dutch, an imposing place and flourishing town, but now it consists merely of a few houses and a native village of no importance. It was long famous for the fine muslins produced by its looms, but now there are very few weavers and the skill which produced the once famous fabrics is gone. The town was ceded to the British along with the other Dutch possessions in 1818. The fort is in a state of ruin but enough of the fortifications remain to show the great strength of the masonry and the plan of the place. The monuments of the dead which it contains are an interesting subject of study. The former official residence of the Governor is now converted into a travellers' bungalow. It is rather a curious bamboo-roof building consisting of hall with rooms on either side and out-offices in close proximity the whole forming a square of considerable dimensions. A short way off from this place stands the Governor's garden-house, a quaint but splendid edifice with towers, elevated terraces and curious arches. It is in a dilapidated state and portions of it have fallen to the ground. There are still traces of a well laid out garden and splendid tanks and other objects of interest about the place.

COVELONG

Covelong, about 20 miles south of Madras was originally a Dutch settlement and a place of some strategical importance. Covelong possesses a Roman Catholic Church, almshouse and orphanage founded and supported by a grant from the DeMonte family formerly rich merchants in Madras. The salt-pans to the west of the village are large and there is some export trade in this article. There is also the Schemter Experimental pans, manufacturing excellent table salt approved by Government for public consumption and is being sold as cheap as the ordinary common salt. No excellent cysters are found here. The inhabitants are chiefly fishermen and salt-manufacturers. The ruins at present in existence belong to the fort called Sadras Sadder, built by Nawab Aswar-ed-din Khan. The fort was seized by the French in 1759 and inherited by Olive in 1843 when it surrendered without firing a shot.

CHINGLEPUT

Is 36 miles south-west of Madras and at the junction of the Chingleput-Arkonam line with the South Indian Railway main line. The District Court is located here. The District Medical and Sanitary Officer, the Sub-Collector, the Sub-Judge, a District Munsif, a Tahsildar have their head quarters in this place. It has a Municipality. It contains besides the Reformatory School of the Presidency established in 1881 where juvenile offenders are received and trained for some useful life. Chingleput possesses the ruins of one of the most important forts in the Carnatic, a fort which is closely connected with Olive's most famous exploits, and with other important incidents of the Carnatic wars. The Chingleput Fort is supposed to have been built in the 16th century by one Tim maraja. The lake flanked one side of it and swamps surrounded it on the other sides. This advantage and the strategic position it occupied rendered the place useful and important in the Carnatic Wars. The hills around the town, the lake and the several lesser sheets of water make it a very picturesque spot, especially after the rains. The health of the town is good.

CONJEEVERAM.

Kanchi or Kanahiguram—one of the seven ancient sacred cities of India, is on the branch line of the South Indian Railway from Chingleput to Arkonam about 45 miles south-west of Madras. In ancient Tamil literature, Kanchi is described as a flourishing extensive city. The pilgrim, Tsiang who visited it in the seventh century, said that the people of Kanchi were superior to many others in bravery, piety, love of justice and respect for learning. In his day Brahmans, Buddhists and Jains were equally numerous and influential. It came into Ohola possession in the 11th century and remained with them till 1810 when Muhamadeans took it. The Hindu King of Vijayanagar annexed it when they were in power. It then passed to Muhamadeans in 1165; to Mahahrathas in 1877 to Muhamadeans again who held it till 1753 when Olive took the place. The town was destroyed by the Mahahrathas in 1686 and plundered by them in 1740. In the wars of the Carnatic it was one of the strategic points and played an important part. The town was constituted a municipality in 1866. It gets its supply of water from the subterranean springs of the Nedavali river from where water is pumped into the town. The supply is abundant. The town is hot. Superior sorts of silk such as Indian ladies wear, are made here. There is a large colony of weavers at Pillalapalayam, a portion of Conjeeveram. The town is crowded with temples and shrines. There is an old Jain temple of much architectural interest about two miles from the town. The Siva temple dedicated to Ekambaraswami is in Big or Siva Kanchi and the Vishnu temple dedicated to Varadarajaswami is in Little or Vishnu Kanchi. Pallava, Ohola, and Vijayanagar Kings have all built temples and made this historic town famous for sacred architecture. The annual festival in the month of May draws people from all parts of India to this place, for whose lodging and boarding during that season chuttrams and choultrys have been built by Hindu Rajahs. Archaeologists and epigraphists find plenty of material in this place.

PERUMBAKKAM

Is a village about 14 miles north west of Conjeeveram. It was here that Colonel Baillie's force was annihilated by Haidar Ali in 1780. This defeat has been depicted in a fresco in the Darya Daulat, Haidar's garden house in Seringapatam.

KARUNGULI

Is a village in the Madurantakam taluk. It is a railway station on the South Indian Railway line. It was once the head-quarters of the district and an important strategic point in the Carnatic Wars. Wandiwash Uttaramerur Chingleput and this place formed a sort of quadrilateral on the line of attack between Madras and Pondicherry. The circumference of the Fort of Karunguli is 1,500 yards. The Fort is the "best battered fort of the Carnatic for it was taken and retaken a hundred times and was the scene of many Homeric deeds. The most famous incident in its history was its surrender to Coote's army in 1769.

PALLAVARAM

Is a town 8 miles south of St. Thomas Mount. It used to be called the Presidency Cantonment, native troops being kept there for garrisoning and protecting the Presidency town. The place is healthy, though hot and water is good and abundant. It is a place of residence for European pensioners and a depot for native infantry. There were once many tanneries which have been closed by the cessation of American demand in consequence of the adoption of chrome tanning. The hills near Pallavaram contain the best specimens of Sir Thomas Holland's Charnockite series of Archaean gneiss and plutonic rocks. In 1738 George Morton Pitt erected a sea-gate colonnade in Fort St. George. It was an avenue of four rows of pillars made of thirty two columns of Pallavaram gneiss. These columns may still be seen in the new council chamber in the Fort. Pallavaram rocks were also utilised in the construction of the Madras Harbour.

SRIPERUMBUDUR

Is on the western trunk road 25 miles from Madras. It is the birth place of Sri Ramannja, the founder of the Vishnuadvaita School of Philosophy and contains a temple dedicated to him executed in the beautiful style of the early Vijayanagar architecture with excellent sculpture. It is a place of pilgrimage for Vaishnavite Hindus throughout India.

TIRUVALLUR

Is the head-quarters of the taluk of the same name and is 3 miles from the Tiruvallur Railway Station on the Madras Railway line. The town contains a temple dedicated to Siva and three to Vishnu. Siva's temple is an older building in the usual Dravidian style. The chief Vishnu temple of Sri Viswanathaswami attracts large crowds of people on New Moon days. A bath in the temple tank and throwing of molasses into it and visit to the temple are done by devotees on that day. The place is important as the head-quarters of Abbottem Mutt of the Vadagalai section of Sri Vaishnavites. The place was plundered in 1746 by the Maharajah.

SAIDAPET

Is a Municipality and is 5 miles from Fort St. George and is the district head-quarters of Chingleput. It is practically a suburb of Madras and, being within easy reach of Madras by the South Indian Railway line, and recently by motor buses, it has been the residence of many officials, etc., working in Madras. The Teachers' College is located here. The Government have recently provided quarters for its subordinate staff at this place and the colony is known as Todhunternagar. The building is situated on the bank of the Adyar which is crossed by the Marmaloe Bridge. Weaving and dyeing are its chief industries.

SEMBIUM

Is very near the Perambur Railway station on the Madras Railway line. The Railway Workshops are here. It is almost a suburb of Madras, and being a healthy locality with good water, it is growing in population. There are many Anglo-Indians here, mostly those connected with the Perambur Works.

TIRUKALIKUNRAM

Otherwise known as Pakshithiraiam—is on the road from Chingleput to Madras. It is an important place of pilgrimage. There is a Siva temple on a small hill about 600 feet above sea level, and a tank at the foot. Two kites come here everyday in the month and are fed by a pandaram. They are supposed to be coming here every day from Benares. A bath in the tank and three circumambulations of the hill are supposed to cure many ills, physical and spiritual. It is in popular opinion a sanitarium for consumptives.

TIRUVOTTIYUR

Is a sacred town five miles north of Madras. It was granted to the English by Dand Khan in 1708, but it was not until 1717 when it was seized by Governor Collet, that the English had secured possession of it. A weaver settlement close to it on the road from Madras was established by Collet and bears his name Kalattipetta (Colletpetta). Tiruvottiyur contains an ancient Siva temple. It was one of the places visited by the Great Sri Sankaracharya. Every Friday the place is thronged by visitors from Madras. Valuable inscriptions in Grantha characters may be seen both inside and outside the temple. The place is malarial.

UTTARAMERUR

Is in the Madurantakam taluk and is a town of some interest. It is believed that there was a very ancient town on this site remains of the foundations of buildings are occasionally exhumed to this day.

WALLAJABAD

(Called also Dandu Shivaram) is very near to Conjeevaram. The place is named after Nawab Wallajah who took that title in 1776. It was made a military cantonment in 1786, on account of its natural advantages from a military point of view. The unhealthiness of the place compelled the abandonment of it as a cantonment; but it still gives its name to the 83rd Regiment of the Indian Army, formerly the 33rd Madras Light Infantry, which bears on its colours 'Seringsapatnam' and 'Nagpur.' There is some trade in oil, grain and other agricultural products. Wallajabad was a scene of disaffection at the time of the Vellore Mutiny in 1806. Traces of the famous Wallajabad race course are yet to be seen. The Palur river runs beside the town and the scenery is very picturesque there during the cold season.

PARKS AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS IN MADRAS.

Aquarium

Beach Road, Madras.

This aquarium has the distinction of being the only one on the Asiatic Mainland; indeed, except for the ephemeral ones erected from time to time in Japan, it may be claimed as the first attempt of its kind east of Suez. Designed by Mr. B. Threlton, it was erected by the Madras Government primarily with a view to give the public an opportunity of learning something of the wonderful wealth of life in the sea at their doors, and partly to afford facilities for the study of the habits of marine animals. From the first it was an immense popular success: so much so that in 1912, the then Governor of Madras Sir Arthur Lawley, decided upon enlarging it. The present building was opened to the public on the 21st October 1909. It remained in charge of the Superintendent of the Museum till 1919, when it was transferred to the Department of Fisheries for the two-fold reason that this department has particular need for aquarium facilities in the carrying on of its investigations of the life histories of our local food fishes and because of the greater facilities it has for stocking and supervision. One outcome of the department's activities is the present descriptive guide; another is the installation of electric lighting and fans. That the improvements effected have been appreciated is proved by the great increase in the number of visitors.

On entering the main hall, five large tanks are seen on either side: a central floor pond for fresh water animals and a number of table aquaria complete the accommodation available for the fishes and other animals on view. The aeration of the water in the tanks is dual, partly by the inflow of filtered sea-water from a high level reservoir, partly by means of an air-compressor delivering air in a mist of tiny bubbles at the bottom of each tank. To obtain sufficiently minute division of the air stream, it is delivered under pressure through a filter-candle hung in the tank. By this means the water is kept so well aerated that it is possible to maintain a permanent state of over-crowding seldom found except temporarily in the open sea. Unfortunately it is impossible to regulate this super-saturation to suit the varying constitutional susceptibilities of every kind of fish. Some suffer in consequence from a disease we may call "gas eye." It arises from an excess of air finding its way into the blood stream by absorption through the gill membranes; the outward sign of the disease is the partial protrusion of the eye-ball. Some fish thus affected eventually recover and all do so quickly if transferred to ordinary sea-water. The majority if left in the tanks and unvisited sicken, and die the actual cause of death being asphyxiation.

But usually the sight of a protruding eye-ball is the signal for an onslaught by its companions, particularly of certain species who begin by viciously tearing out the offending eye and end by killing the victim if they can possibly manage it. Animal life in the sea has no place in its economy for hospitals and playpools. As a consequence one never meets a cripple and very seldom a diseased animal in the sea; life there is for the healthy and the strong alone. The installation of electric light enables the tanks to be brilliantly illuminated after dark; it is an improvement that has been greatly appreciated. In some respects the fishes are actually reared better advantage than under daylight conditions, troublesome reflections caused by bright sunshine pouring in through doors and ventilators are eliminated, while the flexibility permitted by the use of electric bulbs enables the tanks to be lit from the best possible angle. The fishes show perfect tolerance of this artificial lighting, however brilliant it may be. All the fishes exhibited have been obtained in the neighbouring sea. Varied as is the collection, it represents but a tithe of the common species in Madras waters. Many, such as the hilsa, sardines and the mackerel, are too delicate to stand handling and transport to the tanks. Others are unattractive or too bulky for exhibit and if accommodation is far too scanty to permit of showing all the interesting fishes procurable, practically none is available for the host of lower forms of life that constitute such charming features of public aquaria in Europe. We get in Indian seas gaudily coloured and quaintly fashioned crabs, wonderfully spiny lobsters, huge prawns with antennae, a couple of foot-long sea cucumbers in slashed dresses of purple and canary yellow, crimson cushion starfishes covered with great knobs, lovely purple sea-urchins armed crisp-a-pie with poisonous lances, jelly fishes and violet siphonophores the hue of the deep sea, pelagic animals (Janchies) kept afloat by a wonderful raft of living bubbles, to say nothing of the myriad forms of coral life found on the reefs at Pamban, Kilakkarai and Tuticorin.

Connemara Public Library, The

To which considerable additions are made from time to time, contains an extensive series of works relating to South India and a fair supply of current periodical literature. Persons over seventeen years of age may consult books, etc. in the Reading Room daily (Fridays excepted) from 11 A.M. to 5-30 P.M. from October 1st to March 31st, and from 7 A.M. to 6 P.M. during the rest of the year. The Madras University Library is at present temporarily housed in the Connemara Library.

Government Museum

Pantheon Road, Egmore

Superintendent.—M. Barua, B.Sc.

This Museum is intended chiefly to illustrate the natural history, natural resources and man's factors of Southern India, and the manners, customs and antiquities of its inhabitants. The exhibits are arranged in two separate buildings, viz., the Old Building and the New Building (added in 1908), with the Connemara Public Library situated between them. The Old Building contains the Natural History and Archaeological sections, and also a small picture gallery. In the Natural History section will be found collections of Mammals, Birds, Reptiles, Fish, Shells, Insects, Crustaceans, Corals, etc. There are also Botanic, Economic and Geological sections, the last including an extensive series of South Indian minerals. In the Archaeological department, in addition to Hindu and Jain antiquities, will be found a large and interesting collection of sculptures from the Buddhist stupas at Amaravati, which are more closely allied to specimens of ancient Greek art than to anything Dravidian. An attempt has been made to reconstruct a portion of the great rail which originally encircled the stupa. There is a valuable collection of coins which can be inspected by specialists on application to the Superintendent. The New Building contains Wood and Metal work, Prehistoric Antiquities, Ethnological collections and a collection of Arms. The exhibits include artistic manufactures from various localities, arms from Tanjore Armoury and Madras Arsenal, and a series of exhibits to illustrate the customs of prehistoric man in South India and of his descendants at the present day. Here will be found a very fine and extensive collection of South Indian bronzes, mostly from treasure trove finds, some of which reach a very high level of artistic excellence.

A research collection of botanical and zoological collections is now kept in a separate block solely for the use of research students.

The Museum is open free to the public daily, Fridays excepted, from 7 A.M. to 5 P.M.

N.B.—On the first Saturday of every month, after 12 noon, male visitors are excluded and the Museum is placed in charge of female attendants to enable Gocha ladies to inspect the collections.

CHURCHES AND CHAPELS IN MADRAS

CHURCH OF ENGLAND

THE CATHEDRAL CHURCH OF ST GEORGE,

TRINAMPETT

The Church is situated on the Mount Road about three miles from Fort St. George; the locality was called "Choultry Plain" in former years. It was in course of construction in 1814-18 and was opened and consecrated by Bishop Middleton on the 8th January 1818. It is built in the classic style. De Havilland, of the Corps of Engineers, built the edifice on the plans of Col. Caldwell, R. E. The Nave is entered from the West, North and South through lofty porches supported on massive Ionic pillars, carrying entablature and pediment common to Roman architecture. The Western or main entrance contains an ample carriage porch from which the Church is entered through a vestibule with a vaulted roof the upper portion of which is the tower containing a clock and peal of bells and terminating in a spire 180 feet above ground. On either side of the vestibule, are the vestries for the Lord Bishop, Clergy and Choristers.

The Nave is 100 feet long and 27 feet 3 inches wide (centre to centre of columns), flanked by Ionic columns 30 inches in diameter and 25 feet 6 inches high from floor to top of capitals. The Aisles are 100 feet long and 13 feet 4 inches wide (from side walls to centre of columns). The Chancel is 22 feet 6 inches long and 20 feet wide. The Chancel was extended in 1857, and finished with a semi-circular apse with windows fitted with stained glass, subsequently the heads of doors and ventilators which had ordinary glass were replaced with stained glass, and the Organ Gallery at the West end of the Nave removed. At a later period with the renewal of the stings the Chancel was painted and decorated and paved with encaustic tiles. In 1891 the Chancel was further embellished with a handsome dado of glazed encaustic tiles, and the ventilation was improved. Height of roof of Chancel—23 feet.

The Nave is covered with a tiled roof and the Aisles with flat terraced roofing on timberwork supports. The Nave is ceiled in a segmental form with teak planking painted white with paper-mache-ornamentations. The Aisles are also ceiled with teak planking. Height of ceiling above floor in the Nave is 25 feet and 2 inches, and height of ceiling above floor in the Aisles 30 feet and 1 inch. The interior walls and columns are plastered and finely polished with shell lime, a work for which Madras is noted. The exterior is also plastered with shell lime. The details of corner moulding etc. are those usually seen in Roman architecture.

The Edifice as originally erected by Lieutenant-Colonel Caldwell costs Rs. 2,06,843.

The Organ is a fine instrument of three manuals by Hill and Sons of London which has recently (November 1906), been considerably enlarged and improved. The musical Services are generally recognised as of a high order.

The Tower contains a peal of eight bells, which are rung by one man by means of a chiming machine.

Bishop Middleton writes in his diary with reference to the opening services:— Yesterday (8th January 1818) I consecrated a handsomer Church than any which I can recollect in London supported on 18 Ionic columns, which no English eye could distinguish from marble with a lofty and elegant spire and standing in a field also to be consecrated of 5 or 6 acres surrounded with rows of palm trees—the whole conveys a magnificent idea of Christianity in the East. I was assisted on this occasion by seven of my clergy a great number to bring together in this country. We should hardly now-a-days endorse Bishop Middleton's eulogy of the Cathedral fabric but without doubt the building is a fine one and full of dignity.

The field to which the Bishop refers was only consecrated in part, namely that part which is now known as St. George's Cathedral Cemetery.

The Church contains some fine monuments, amongst which should be especially noticed that to "Dr. James Anderson" (died August 5th 1800)—a wonderfully life-like and natural seated figure of the Physician-General and that to "Bishop Heber" (drowned at Trichinopoly, April 26th, 1826) which represents his Lordship in the act of confirmation. These two sculptures are by Chantry. There is also a fine marble statue by Flaxman to "James Stephen Lushington," B.C.S. (died 19th September, 1844, aged 38) and a figure of Faith "holding a cross in memory of the Venerable John Mowley, D.D., first Archbishop of Madras (died 31st August 1819) also by Flaxman. To the memory of Dr. Daniel Corrie the first Bishop of Madras (died 5th February 1837), is a remarkably fine statue of heroic size, by Weekes. He is represented, imparting religious instruction to a Brahmin boy. Bishop Desbry (died 5th March 1861), is commemorated by a piece of wall sculpture administering Holy Orders. A curious and finely executed monument is in memory of John Mack Assistant Surgeon (died 20th May 1833). It exhibits a figure of Hygieia, goddess of health offering milk to a serpent, which drinks from the cup she holds. Among other remarkable monuments should be noticed those to John Dent, M.O.S. (died 17th January 1845), by Weekes; to William Parry died 16th August 1834 by W. Baily, B.A.; to Captain Andrew French and others (1834-5), a bas-relief of a battleship, by Stierce; to Neville Somerville Cameron, M.C.S. ST MARY'S CHURCH.

FORT ST. GEORGE

The ancient Church of St. Mary's, situated within the ramparts of Fort St. George, is not only conspicuous landmark to all who approach the Presidency town by sea, but is also a witness to the piety and devotion of the early settlers on the Coromandel Coast in the seventeenth century. Madras itself dates from the 1st March 1639-40.

A small Fort was erected on the site of the present Secretariat Offices, and a town gradually springing up around it. For about 40 years Divine Service was regularly held in one of the rooms of this inner Fort, but in 1677, Mr. Streyasbam Master on his arrival as Agent and Governor, set about collecting funds for the erection of a more suitable place of worship. Subscriptions were raised from all the English inhabitants, and it does not appear that any assistance was asked for or given by the Directors of the English Company. St. Mary's was the result of local effort entirely. The first and was turned on Lady Day, March 25th 1678, and the Church was completed and was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary and opened for worship on the 28th October 1680. It was consecrated by the Chaplain Richard Porcman, acting under a Commission from the Bishop of London.

The church stands to-day exactly as it was erected, with the exception of the vestry organ chamber, and sanctuary which were added in the nineteenth century and the spire, which was rebuilt at the end of the eighteenth century. The chief objects of interest in this old church are as follows:—

THE OLD TOMBS.—These are situated round the north side of the church and form a kind of pavement. These stones were taken in 1680 from the old graveyard, which was on the site now occupied by the Law College. During the second siege of Madras by the French in 1759-60 the large monuments of the old graveyard afforded shelter to the French sharpshooters. When the siege was raised the old burial-ground was dismantled, and the gravestones brought to St. Mary's and placed round the church. There are among them also some which were taken from the old Capuchin Church of St. Andrew which was destroyed in 1749 when Madras was handed back by the French after the Peace of Aix-la-Chapelle. These old stones are of great interest. The most ancient of them is that of Elizabeth Baker, the wife of Aaron Baker, the first Governor of Madras and is dated August 5th 1663. Most of the stones are in an extremely good state of preservation in spite of their exposed situation.

Inside the church are to be seen many interesting objects. Below the Chancel steps are the graves of the Governors. The tomb marked simply with a cross and the words "In Memoriam" marks the last resting place of the ill-fated Lord Pigot. After having risen from the lowest to the highest station in Madras this unfortunate nobleman was sent out again to stem the tide of corruption among the higher civilians. He was wounded in the encounter and after having been arrested by the members of his Council was kept as a prisoner at the Mount until he died on the 11th May 1777. The other Governors who lie buried here are Lord Hobart, April 1876, Sir Henry George Ward August 1760 and Sir Thomas Munro July 1827.

The monuments on the walls are worth noticing especially those to 'Sir Barry Close Joseph Moorhouse, George Gilbert Esq. Josiah Webb and the famous missionary Frederick Christian Swartz.' There are two fine statues. One near the organ is that of Thomas H. R. Conway 'the soldiers friend', the other, near the Font, of Hercules Henry Pepper—both of them distinguished soldiers.

Of the old regimental colours which adorn the walls and pillars the pair behind the pulpit are of the greatest interest. They belonged to the old 103rd Madras Fusiliers (now the Dublin Fusiliers), and were carried by that famous regiment through the Second Burmese War in 1823-4, and the Indian Mutiny 1857-8.

Over the altar is a large painting of the Last Supper. This picture is supposed to have been taken from a church in Pondicherry when it was captured by the British in 1761. The painting is by an unknown artist, but expert opinion dates it as of the sixteenth century and possibly by a pupil of Raphael. At any rate it is a valuable historic work. In September 1910 the picture was restored by H. B. Miller. The painted wood railing of the West gallery was noticed by Lockyer in 1708. It is of oriental design and beautiful workmanship. The organ is by Hill of London, and was erected by the Rev. C. H. Malden in 1894.

The church possesses some very fine old silver plate and ancient records and registers. These are not kept at the church but can be seen by appointment with the Garrison Chaplain. For a detailed account of the church and its history to the end of the eighteenth century, the reader is referred to the Rev. F. Penny's book 'The Church in Madras.'

CHURCH OF SCOTLAND

ST ANDREW'S CHURCH,

POONAMALLEE ROAD EGMORA.

On the September 1815 a public notification was widely circulated in Madras, which supplied the Scotemen of this historic city with a fertile and novel topic of discussion. It told how the East India Company had resolved to build a Scots Church in the Presidency town, for the benefit of its Scottish employees, and to establish there a Chaplaincy of the Church of Scotland. how the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland of the previous year had gratefully welcomed this resolution; how the Rev Dr Allan, the first Chaplain of the Church, had arrived in Madras, armed with authority from the Assembly to proceed with the formation of the first Scots congregation in South India; and, finally, it called upon all who intended to attach themselves to the Scots Church to send in their names to Dr Allan and four co-signatories, in order that definite information might be furnished to the Government as to the accommodation required for the new congregation.

The names and employments of these four devoted Churchmen—the earliest members of the Kirk Session—are interesting as showing the part which influential Scots in those days took in the advancement of their Church, as also as partly accounting for the generous treatment meted out to the Scots congregation by the Madras Government when the Church came to be built. With two Ministers at Council as builders, and, as it happened, a Scotsman, the Right Hon'ble Hugh Elliot, as Governor of the Presidency, advocacy of the Scottish claims would not be wanting. In the Church records the names are as follow:—Robert Fullerton, O. S., Member of Council; David Hill, C. S., Secretary to Government; Kinley Dalrymple, Merchant; William M. Taggart, Merchant.

To the notice thus issued a cordial response was made. Scotsmen rallied to their Church, and without further delay Divine Service, according to the rite of the Church of Scotland, began to be held. At first, in the absence of a Church, the congregation met in the College Hall, which was temporarily fitted up by Government to suit the emergency, but the question of building a Scots Church was diligently pushed forward. The size and influential nature of the congregation, which rapidly formed under Dr Allan's ministry, gave weight to the petition which it soon sent up to Government, that the Scots community might be furnished with a church of its own. To the petition Government gave a ready assent, and requested the Kirk Session to select a suitable site and prepare plans of a suitable building for the further consideration of the Government.

The present site—the most central spot in all Madras—was secured and the work of building began. Fortunately, there was then in the service of the Government one of the ablest architects India has seen—Major Thomas Plott de Havilland of the Engineers—and to him the work was entrusted. How well he did his work may be judged by the unstinted admiration which St. Andrew's Church evokes from all who see it. "Perhaps the noblest Christian edifice in Hindostan" is what Bishop Middleton's biographer said of it,—himself no lover of the Scottish Church—and the praise is not undeserved. The foundation stone was laid by the Rev Dr Allan on the 6th April 1818, and it was his privilege to solemnly dedicate the Church to the service of ALMIGHTY God, on the 26th February 1821.

The cost of this splendid edifice was about £20,000, which must be deemed exceedingly moderate for a building of this description.

The edifice may be thus described: The body of the Church is a circle 81 feet and 6 inches in diameter in the clear, with a rectangular compartment east and west of it, and a portico extending beyond the latter to westward. Over the circular part is a dome covering as it were the nave of the Church with an annular arch round it, over what may be termed the aisles. The architrave and frieze which stand on 16 columns are of stone but the cornice above is of brick, and on it rests the dome; of these columns four are of granite, the remainder are of what is termed in Madras "iron stone."

The dome is constructed with but a framework of brick running upwards from the columns towards the crown where these ribs are terminated and united together by a circular arch of the same description. This framework is then filled in with masonry formed of cones of pottery such as are used in Syrian roofs. The thickness of the dome at the crown is only nine inches, whence it is gradually increased to nearly twice that dimension at the cornice. Over the Syrian cones before mentioned, three courses of flat tiles are carefully laid and on them the stucco is applied. The dome of the Kirk is believed to be 'unique' in that a dome of masonry fifty-one and a-half feet in diameter is supported on a colonnade thirty-five feet high, without beam or lateral, its height at highest point of dome being 54 feet above the pavement of the Church.

To the westward of the compartment containing the steeple stands the portico of the modern "Ionic" order upon a colonnade double its depth, surmounted by a pediment along the whole front in the tympanum, on which the sacred name JESUOUS appears in Hebrew characters of gold on a triangle emanating rays of glory, while in the frieze below stands the name of the edifice and the date of its erection. Corresponding at the back of the building is also a triangle with two lions guarding a shield under which is inscribed—"Auspicio Regis et Senatus Angliæ," the arms and motto of the H. B. I. Co.

The steeple stands on the tower which is raised over the vestibule to a level with the crown of the dome rises 111½ feet above it, and is divided into three storeys giving the whole an elevation of 181½ feet above the entablature and 166½ feet above the pavement of the Kirk. The steeple was completed on 8th May 1830.

The site on which the church stands was purchased for 4 000 pagodas and covers nearly 7 acres. The soil was most unfavourable as it is throughout the vicinity of Madras. The practice which has obtained from time immemorial in this part of India to secure edifices in such cases is that of substituting walls for the pile work used in Europe. The whole of the foundation of St. Andrew's Church is erected over numerous wells, from 10 to 14 feet deep. In 1868, the Church was beautified by the addition of rich stained glass windows and a marble font. The church possesses a splendid grand organ by Conscher of Huddersfield, England. Some of the best views of Madras, may be obtained from the Clock Tower mention to ascend which is readily granted by the Senior Chaplain.

For stateliness and general lightness of effect St. Andrew's is probably unsurpassed by any building of the same size while the marble pavement of the aisles and the highly polished Madras column pillars give to the Church an air of purity and grateful coolness that is much appreciated by the worshippers. It is a church to be proud of, and thankful for.

ROMAN CATHOLIC

THE CHURCH OF ST. MARY OF ARMENIA.

Commonly called the Catholic Cathedral, Armenian Street.

The Capuchin Mission of Madras was founded in 1643, under the sanction of Pope Urban, VIII by the well-known Father Ephraim, the Pioneer of the Madras Mission, of whom Tavernier gives an interesting account. He was a native of Amara, and brother of Monsieur de Chateau des Bois, Comandor of Paris. He was destined for the Mission of Pegu and in order to reach his destination he made a journey by land across the peninsula from Surat to Masulipatam. Before the English settlement at Masulipatam was broken up, he might have got a ship here to take him across the Bay of Bengal; but then there was none, and he was recommended to go 300 miles further south to the British settlement lately established at Madras. Pope Urban, VIII, erected the Capuchin Mission into a Prefecture Apostolic. When the Friars built their Armenian Street Church in 1773, they inscribed the date 1643 over the gates as a public record of their first establishment in Madras, and on a later occasion, when the Church was repaired and the gates widened, the number was preserved at the particular request of the oldest inhabitants. The earliest Capuchins, the founders of the Madras Mission, were Ephraim de Nevers, Zenon de Baugé, Cosme de Giers, Jacques de Bourges, Esprit de Tours, Laurent d'Angoulême, Michael Ange de Bourges, René d'Angoulême and Thomas de Poitiers. The last named built in 1648, the Church of St. Andrew within the Fort which was confiscated and destroyed after Lally's siege. The Capuchin Fathers were permitted to minister to the spiritual wants of the Catholic employees of the Honourable the East India Company and had free access to the Factory. Albeit, they were burdened with many condition and forbidden to hold intercourse with their religious confreres in the neighbouring settlement. It is interesting to read the current of events in those far off times. Though the English residing at Fort St. George and the Portuguese at San Thome seem to have lived in those days on rather friendly terms, there was an under-current of discontent on both sides, and the Portuguese could not relish the establishment of a Prefecture Apostolic at Madras. Father Ephraim, however, contrived to maintain a friendly intercourse with the Portuguese priests. In the year 1649, he had occasion to visit the Portuguese Factory; but he no sooner entered the place than he was seized by some Officers of the Goa Inquisition and carried off to Goa in a small frigate which was then ready to sail. Father Ephraim was indebted to Coota Khan, the King of Golconda, for his release. Through many vicissitudes the Capuchin Fathers persevered in the work begun by them, and handed it down faithfully to their successors, till Father John Bede Polding, a Benedictine, was nominated the first Vicar Apostolic of Madras on the 3rd of July 1832 but he declined the appointment and eventually became Archbishop of Sydney. The Mission was then taken charge of by the Vicar Apostolic of Bombay, Mr. Pedro U. Alcantara. Bishop of Antiochia, till 1838, when in August of that year the Rt. Rev. Dr. Daniel O'Connor assumed the Government of the Mission. Doctor John Fennelly 1842-1850 Doctor Stephen Fennelly 1868-1880. The Most Rev. Doctor Joseph Colgan 1880-1911 in whose time the Vicariate Apostolic was raised to an Archdiocese on the establishment of the Indian Hierarchy in 1880. It was during the administration of John Fennelly that the status of the Catholic community was raised and the claims of both military and civil Catholic British subjects were adequately recognised by Government. The influence exerted by Dr. Fennelly and by his clergy upon the European residents, and especially upon the Irish Catholic soldiers at Madras and other military stations may be regarded as the most important fruit of his Episcopate.

John Fennelly was brave and outspoken, and of the Daniel O'Connor type. His intrepid advocacy of the cause of his flock obtained for the Catholic community of Madras the recognition of Government. Promotion from the ranks of Catholics in the Indian Army may well be said to have been inaugurated by the strenuous exertions of this good Bishop. He was prominent in the meeting of sympathy with Sir Charles Trevelyan the Governor on his recall. In fact John Fennelly was the founder of the then Madras Mission, which has now risen to be an Archdiocese. He was indefatigable in building the foundations, and spared himself nothing. He was thoroughly unselfish, broadly tolerant of the religion of others and ever ready to take up the cause of the poor at whatever cost. Despite all the work that fell to his share in those days of pioneer trouble and anxiety he daily devoted two hours to teaching in the schools. He was a great and prolific writer and an unsparring controversialist. His memory is enshrined in the hearts of the generation of Madras Catholics who are rapidly passing away, while his bones lie interred in the precincts of the Sanctuary of that Cathedral Church which was the arena of his life's labours. John Fennelly was succeeded by Stephen Fennelly, his brother, under whose regime the finances of the Mission were greatly improved by his tact and business habits. Doctor Joseph Colgan was nominated in private consistory May 1883 Bishop of Australopolis and Vicar Apostolic of Madras and consecrated on the 24th August of the same year in the Catholic Cathedral. Promoted to the Archiepiscopal dignity by the Decree of 26th November 1886, he was proclaimed at Bangalore on the 5th January 1887, and nominated by Pope Leo XIII. Assistant at the Pontifical Throne on the occasion of His Grace's Golden Jubilee, 4th February 1894. His Grace Dr. J. Colgan was called to his reward 11th February 1911, and was succeeded by the Most Rev. John Aclen, D.D., Co-adjutor Bishop and a Member of St. Joseph's Society, Mill Hill (London). Doctor Aclen was nominated Bishop of Termisina and Co-adjutor to His Grace, the Archbishop of Madras on 2nd December 1901 consecrated at Rosendael (Holland), 2nd February 1902. Appointed Co-adjutor ad jure successor to His Grace the Archbishop, 31st July 1902.

The Cathedral Church has two transepts with a sanctuary, choir, nave and side aisles, built by the Italian Capuchins in 1775, and then consisted of a nave with two side aisles and a sanctuary under a pent roof. The pent roof was removed by Dr. O'Connor in 1837, and a flat roof put on, the walls of the nave having been raised ten feet. The sanctuary was at the same time thrown down and enlarged.

and two transepts added. His Grace Archbishop Cogan raised the roof of the side Altars to the height of the roof of the Chancel, which is now fitted up with stained glass windows. The picture of the Crucifixion and Mary Magdalene, more than life size, is said to be one of the finest oil paintings in India.

In the Moorat Chapel, attached to the Cathedral, there is an artistic monument of Italian marble. Mr. Moorat was the wealthiest Armenian of his day. He left charitable bequests known as the "Moorat Fund." His monument bore the date 18th April 1816. His wife, Anna Raphael, died 28th July 1833, aged 87. The earliest gravestone, dated 11th November 1751, and records the sepulchre of Muttu Nayakar, son of Babu Nayakar of the Kaverai caste. The date 22nd February 1766, is inscribed over the resting place of "Adrian Fourbeck, a merchant of this city of Madraspatnam, aged 71 years." Adrian Fourbeck built a small bridge over the Adyar, 1753, as is recorded in English, Tamil, Persian and Latin, on a monument half way to the Mount outside, the Collector of Chingleput's residence at Lushington's Garden. But this is not the Marmalung Bridge which dates from 1725, and was erected by Petrus Uskan, another Armenian Catholic.

BISHOPRIC OF SAN THOME (MYLAPORE)

According to South Indian traditions, supported by the collateral testimony of the East and West (see Dr. Medley's 'India and the Apostle St. Thomas' London David Nutt 1905) the Apostle St. Thomas, after preaching in various parts of India, settled down in old Mylapore (as distinguished from the Mylapore of the present day) was martyred on the hill at St. Thomas' Mount and was buried on the spot on which the San Thome Cathedral now stands in A.D. 69. The Christian Church of India, founded by St. Thomas continued to flourish till the persecutions that followed in the wake of the revival of Brahmanism, when the Christian Bishops and priests were put to death and the remnants of their flocks took refuge in the mountains of Malabar. Shortly after old Mylapore was overwhelmed by the sea (which has a habit of encroaching and receding at this point annually) the Mylapore of the present time came into being. The fugitive Christians however kept their faith alive by furtive visits to the Grave of the Apostle in the now deserted old Mylapore till Nestorian Missionaries and Bishops from Persia, gathered them once again into communities and built a church and monastery at old Mylapore and another church and chapel at St. Thomas' Mount, which were visited by Marco Polo and other early travellers. But by the beginning of the XVIIth century these buildings had fallen into ruin till scarcely a trace of them was left when a Portuguese Royal Commission came in quest of the grave of St. Thomas, which it discovered and identified in 1533, and built a chapel over it to mark the spot.

Presently the Portuguese town of San Thome, sprang up on the site of old Mylapore, and was subsequently fortified and made a Bishopric in 1606, by Pope Paul V at the request of Philip II King of Portugal when later on the Dutch took San Thome and handed it over to the Muhammadans, the Muhammadan Governors and their followers settled in the place that separated the European town of San Thome from the Brahmin town of (new) Mylapore.

When the Bishopric of San Thome was created the King of Portugal undertook to support it for all time: a promise which his successors have kept, notwithstanding all the vicissitudes, through which their fortunes have passed, up to the present, enjoying in return the privilege of presenting to the Pope their nominees for the Bishopric. The Bishops of San Thome originally exercised jurisdiction over all the countries bordering the Bay of Bengal including Burma. But this jurisdiction was delimited by the 'Concordat' of 1681, entered into between the Holy See and the Government of Portugal.

The present Cathedral at San Thome was built and completed in 1698 by Dr. Henry Reed Da Silva who was the first to assume the title of "Bishop of Mylapore" for ordinary use, in order to avoid confounding San Thome in Madras with San Thome a Principal (of the West Coast of Africa), an important actual possession of Portugal. But, in official documents, the Bishops are still described as of San Thome de Malapoor.

On the occasion of the Tricentenary of the creation of the Bishopric (1686), Dr Theotimus de Castro, the present Bishop, had the floor of the Grave enlarged and faced with marble, to enable pilgrims to have access to the bottom of the Grave and to enable Masses to be celebrated immediately over the Grave, according to the practice of the early Christians.

MADRAS RACE CLUBSHORT HISTORY

Although the records of the Madras Race Club in its early days are few it is certain that a Race Course existed as far back as 1777 and that during the decade before the commencement of the second Mysore War (1791-92) Race Meetings were held on the present Course at Guindy and a Stand for running Racing was built by public contribution. Racing has been carried on more or less without interruption since those days, but the vicissitudes of the Club itself have been many. In an old Racing Calendar dated 1838 have been found definite records of Racing from 1791 to 1837 a matter of 46 years. It is uncertain whether a properly constituted Club was then in existence. About 1837, a Southern India Turf Club was formed and took over the Course and Stands, and existed as such until 1878—the year of the visit of the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward VII) to Madras. From now on interest in Racing seems to have gradually declined until in 1887 it was practically non-existent. It is recorded that at that time the balance at the credit of the Race Fund amounted to Rs. 11 18-2. In 1887 a revival of Racing was mooted and a public meeting was called by Lt. Col. G. M. Moore one of the old Stewards, in the following terms:—a meeting in connection with the Madras Races 1887-88 will be held at 2-30 A.M. on Monday next the 29th June in the Gyanikam Stand. H. E. the Governor has kindly consented to preside. At this meeting certain gentlemen were appointed Stewards (presumably of the Madras Races and not of the Southern India Turf Club). These Stewards assumed the possession and management of the Course and Stand and took over the balance of Rs. 11 18-2. The question as to the rights of Southern India Turf Club does not seem to have been considered. No Rules for a Race Club were passed at the Public Meeting, and up to 1895 Racing and all connected with it was carried on by the Stewards who added to their number as occasion arose. By 1895 the balance at the credit of the Race Fund stood at Rs. 20,000. In October 1896 an appeal for Members for a properly constituted Race Club resulted in 50 Members being enrolled. In January 1896 a Public Meeting was held to consider the question of handing over to the Madras Race Club, the funds and appurtenances now in the hands of the Stewards Madras Races. The Madras Race Club was thus formed and exists as such to the present day although the Rules have been considerably altered. Racing ceased during the Great War, and the present revival dates from the winter of 1919-20. Of this revival the time has not yet come to write in detail; suffice it to say that it is probably unprecedented for its rapid growth in the history of Racing in the East and was due in a large measure to the interest taken by Lord and Lady Willingdon in its development. In 1906-07 the Races had to be abandoned on account of the failure of the rain. In 1907 a race track was built on the eastern side of the Race Club. A Gymkhana Meeting was organized in 1907 it was resolved to build a Grand Stand for afternoon racing. It must be remembered that up till then the Stand was situated near the present mile post. The Stand was a handsome structure was kindly given by the Maharajah of Bobbili towards the Members stand now called the Bobbili Stand. The Weighing and Dressing Rooms were erected in 1910 and the Venkataswami Stand in the 1st Enclosure was generously presented in 1920 by Capt. Sir the Maharajah of Venkataswami. The Members Stand kindly given by the Rajah of Khammam in the 2nd Enclosure and the public Stand were built in 1921. The Electric Totalisator was completed in time for season 1923-24. The Members Luncheon and Tea Room and Paddock Stand were first used in 1925 as well as new Dry-dog down sheds in rear of the Weighing Rooms.

THE GRIFFIN SCHEME.

During the season 1925-26 the Stewards carefully considered the problem of encouraging the local owner as it was obviously an unsound policy as far as filling Races for English horses to have to rely entirely on horses from other parts of India. The Stewards decided therefore to import as many English thoroughbred Griffins as there were purchasers. During 1925-26 17 2-year olds were landed. The price of these was guaranteed not to exceed Rs. 2,500 landed at Madras, and in fact worked out to less. On arrival of a batch they were drawn for by members, who had applied previously. Up-to-date 43 horses have been imported under this scheme and many of these have turned out very well, not only in their own class for which Races are given at Madras, Ootacamund, Bangalore and Mysore but also in the open class. The Stewards intend to continue with the scheme so long as there are prospective purchasers, and suggest that the scheme offers great possibilities to members, who may not be in a position to buy a horse on their own, but who might under this scheme make the purchase price with one or two others. The scheme has been clearly shown that the majority of purchasers have made good investments. Several of the horses mentioned, which have not won up-to-date were only 2-year olds on landing and are sure to win races in the near future.

THE ARTIFICIAL HARBOUR AT MADRAS.

Nature having done absolutely nothing for the provision at Madras of any kind of shelter for shipping, it has been necessary artificially to provide an enclosed artificial harbour having an area of 500-acres affording water in all weather at a cost of over a million sterling. The following is a sketch of the provision to made:—

A nine-acre boat basin serves for the safe harbourage of all the small craft, from 1,000 ton downwards, working in the harbour. It is equipped with 1,000 feet of shallow quay walls alongside of which barges and cargo boats can lie, and is now extensively used for the landing and shipping of iron and stone, as well as for non-durable coasting cargo for the handling of which 17 hydraulic cranes have been provided.

A canal from the boat basin leads into a two-acre timber pond, equipped with small jetties and cranes and with all facilities for handling the timber trade, for which a large storage area is reserved around the pond. The boat basin shelters the Trust's own fleet of some 17 vessels of 1,000 tons and downwards, and, in addition, accommodates as many as 100-ton lighters as private enterprises seek to supply for the needs of the landing and shipping business.

There has also been constructed in the boat basin a slipway capable of taking vessels up to 900 tons deadweight, and an area has been reserved with a ramp leading to it on which the smaller barges and boats may be built and repaired. Close alongside the boat basin and its slipway the Trust has built its new and convenient permanent workshops, which are able to undertake all reasonable repairs to the own extensive plant and occasionally to render assistance to shipping.

The port is adequately provided with piping, through which oil and petrol may be pumped into the merchants' installations from vessels lying at their moorings.

Horses and cattle can walk straight ashore into, or can embark from, paddocks, without the intervention of railway wagons.

The West Quay provides berthing for four, or in an emergency, 5, during mobilization for six vessels of 90 to 90 feet draft. Back of the four berths are four transit sheds of an area of about 7 acres. Between the ship berths, spaces, equipped with 81 ton hydraulic cranes, have been reserved for working cargo in and out of lighters. Electric 8 ton and 5 ton cranes and Hydraulic 8 ton cranes are provided for working cargo direct in and out of the holds of ships lying at the quay. Electric trucks and steamers have been provided for the speedy transport of cargo into the sheds.

There are three other ship-quays, namely, the Outer Quay used chiefly for the discharge of case oil and petrol on the north-eastern sheltering breakwater; the East Quay, used for coal, at the old now closed harbour entrance; and the South Quay used chiefly by Bangkok and Singapore passenger vessels, as well as by horse and auto-boats. All these three quays, as well as the West Quay berths, are connected up by rail, on both the metre and the standard gauge, with all parts of the harbour and indeed of India. Everywhere troops and passengers can pass from rail to ship's side in half-a-dozen paces.

On the South Quay packages up to 35 tons can be lifted direct from the ship hold and 40 tons from a lighter. 2 Motor cranes of 20 and 40 tons capacity 1 crane 15 tons and 1 electric crane of 5 tons capacity are provided.

Suitable accommodation for passengers of all classes, has been provided at the South Quay, at a cost of about Rs. 2.00 Cr.

THE MADRAS PORT TRUST'S SCALE OF RATES.

PART I.

STATEMENT OF THE CHARGES FOR CERTAIN SERVICES WHICH THE TRUST IS PREPARED TO RENDER TO THE PUBLIC, AND OF THE CONDITIONS ATTACHING TO SUCH SERVICES

1 THE TRUST'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR GOODS PASSING THROUGH ITS PREMISES—(a) Accommodation and watching.—For the convenience of its clients, whether importers, exporters or steamer agents, the Port Trust provides and polices accommodation covered, uncovered, locked, or unlocked, as required, for imports in process of transit between ship or lighter and cart or wagon and for exports in the reverse direction.

(b) Trust not responsible unless goods be definitely tendered to it for custody.—But the passage of goods into or through the Trust's premises, or its handling of them or its storing of them, for the convenience of its clients, whether under roof or not, locked or not, does not bring such goods under the bailiership of the Trust, as contemplated in section 40 (1) of the Madras Port Trust Act, unless and until, in compliance with a request by the tenderers, a receipt relating thereto, as specified in section 39 (3) of the Act, shall have passed from the Trust to those tendering the goods to it for custody. In the case of export cargo, the prescribed receipt shall not be granted until the tenderer shall have complied with the conditions noted on the reverse of the Port Trust form called the "Export Application."

(c) Additional dues on exports taken into the Trust's custody.—On all goods intended for export which, at the owner's request, the Trust takes definitely into its custody under sections 39 (3) and 40 (1) of the Act and gives a receipt for, an extra charge shall be levied of $2\frac{1}{2}$ annas per ton over and above the charges shown in Part II of the Scale of Rates.

(d) Owner responsible for packages under appraisement.—Goods opened by order of the Customs Department or removed by the Trust, under the instructions of the Customs Department, for examination or appraisement, shall remain at the risk of the owner until, with the permission of the Customs Department, they shall have been returned definitely by the owner to the Trust for custody and a receipt for them shall have been granted.

(e) Conditions of Trust's acceptance of bailiership.—Goods tendered for custody to the Trust as bailees, by importers, exporters or steamer agents must be tendered at such places and be stacked in such manner as the Trust may appoint for the purpose from time to time, or may direct to the tenderer and until so placed and the prescribed receipt shall have passed from the Trust to the owner, such goods shall continue to be at the owner's sole risk.

(f) Conditions on which exports in Trust's custody may pass out.—Exports which have passed into the Trust's custody, as per clause 1 (b) and (c) shall not be moved for shipment, or from the harbour premises until the receipt given for them by the Trust to the exporter or an acquittance of equivalent validity shall have passed to the Trust from the exporter. But from the moment of the surrender of such receipt or of such acquittance, by the owner to the Trust, such goods shall be at the owner's sole risk notwithstanding their being in the Trust's premises and enjoying such conveniences as those referred to above in clause 1 (a).

2 THE TRUST'S OPTION TO PERFORM SERVICES—(a) To land ship or tranship goods.—Under section 39 (1) of its Act the Trust has the option to land, ship or tranship goods between vessels in the port and its wharves, quays or docks. But at present it only performs such services in the cases laid down in clause 30.

(b) To take charge of goods for delivery or shipment.—Under section 39 of the Act, the Trust has the option to undertake or to refuse to undertake the reception, removal, portering or storage of goods brought within its premises. For goods of which it consents to take charge, the Trust shall be bound, under section 39 (5) of its Act, to give a receipt if thereunto required.

(c) Goods of which the Trust does not take charge.—But at present the Trust does not take charge of the following classes of goods, whether in the open or under such shelter, locked or unlocked, as it may have placed at owners' or steamer agents' disposal, viz (i) exports not specifically tendered for custody under clause 1 (b) and for which a receipt has, therefore, not been granted (ii) iron and steel, etc., the handling of which has been relinquished by the Trust to steamer agents (iii) nondurable coasting cargo of which the handling has been relinquished by the Trust to steamer agents—other than the combustibles that must be landed under the Trust's combustibles permit; (iv) Government stores, (v) free goods (vi) items printed in italics in Part II of the Scale of Rates, (vii) all goods landed outside the harbour and (viii) goods stored on rented plots or in rented sheds.

3 PORTERAGE—(a) Rates and charges.—The rates given in Part II of the Scale of Rates cover portering by the Trust except the items printed in italics in Part II of the scale and goods landed or shipped outside the harbour. Whenever, at the request of owners, the Trust handles any goods not ordinarily so handled it shall levy an additional charge equal to the actual cost incurred in such handling, with 4 annas per ton as a minimum and also storage charges, if incurred, but shall accept no responsibility in respect of cargo so handled. But in the case of packages on which the rates of harbour dues are 'per each', the portage charges shall be the actual cost incurred, subject to a minimum of 30 per cent of the scheduled harbour dues.

(b) Relinquishment of portage of iron and steel whether foreign or coasting and of all other existing cargo by the Trust to steamer agents or others.—(1) Whenever the Trust agrees with steamer agents or others to relinquish to the latter the portage of iron or steel, whether coasting or foreign, consigned to others than to Government and landed at the boat basin iron yard, the rate of harbour dues thereon shall be 8 annas per ton less than that quoted in the Scale of Rates.

(2) Whenever the Trust agrees with the steamer agents or others to relinquish to the latter the portage of non dutiable coasting cargo the rates of harbour dues payable by owners of such cargo shall be 10 annas less per ton than those quoted in the Scale of Rates. This reduction shall not, however apply to the items printed in Tables Part II of the Scale, to goods landed outside the harbour and to goods of which the rates are 'per each'.

(c) Trust may collect steamer agents' portage charges.—Should an agreement be come to between the Trust and a steamer agent that the latter shall handle cargo ordinarily handled by the former at an agreed rate both parties to the agreement shall be at liberty to arrange mutually for the Trust to collect from owners and to pay the steamer agent the agreed rate for portage without the steamer agent being thereby constituted the Trust's contractor or agent.

4 Exports—

(a) Rebate if owners handle exports.—Should owners of exports care to do so, they may with the Trust's permission endorse on the 'application' handle their goods themselves and in that case they shall be granted a rebate of 3 annas per ton. But such permission shall be given for the handling of the whole, not a part of the exports covered by one 'application'.

(b) Unloading exports.—Exports arriving by rail shall be unloaded and stacked by owners. Exports arriving by rail, other than ores, coal, kerosene oil, rough stone, ballast, timber and such like, shall be dealt with under the Port Trust Railway tariff.

(c) Conditions.—For the purpose of assessing dues all exports shall be suitably stacked for counting, weighing or measurement at places pointed out by the Trust. No exports shall be moved forward for shipment until all dues thereon shall have been paid.

(d) Special portage.—For portage done by the Trust and not covered by harbour dues the charge shall be the actual cost to the Trust of such portage with 4 annas per ton as a minimum. In the case of goods on which rates are quoted 'per each' the minimum charge for special portage whether the goods are landed or shipped shall be the actual cost subject to a minimum of 30 per cent of the scheduled harbour dues.

5 Transit dues on imports left lying in the Trust's premises—

(a) Intention in imposing transit dues on imports free accommodation allowed and the scale of transit charges.—The Trust's intention in imposing transit dues on imports is not to act as warehouse men for profit but to prevent the congestion of its sheds which experience shows to take place if the charges for shelter are too low. Such congestion is found seriously to interfere with the speedy transit through the harbour premises of goods of which owners desire to take early delivery. In order to prevent congestion the following transit dues shall be imposed—

After allowing for such free days, excluding Sundays and Chamber of Commerce holidays as the Trust, by resolution in meeting, may see fit to grant from time to time transit dues shall be charged on all goods left in the Trust's premises at the following rates except during the periods in the exceptions noted below when transit dues shall not be charged—

First week—

- (i) On consignments, actually landed, whose weight or measurement covers 50 tons and over annas 5 per ton per day.
- (ii) On consignments, actually landed, whose weight or measurement covers 10 tons and over but less than 50 tons annas 4 per ton per day.
- (iii) On consignments, actually landed, whose weight or measurement covers less than 10 tons, annas 3 per ton per day.

Second week—Twice the rates leviable for the first week per ton per day.

Subsequent period.—Thrice the rates leviable for the first week per ton per day.

Note.—For the purpose of determining the classification all fractions of a ton exceeding $\frac{1}{2}$ of a ton shall be reckoned as one ton.

If at any time the Trust should apprehend serious congestion in its transit sheds to the detriment of the rapid transit of goods through the port it may direct the owners or consignees of any specified goods to remove such goods from the harbour premises within a given time; and should the goods not be so removed, the Trust may charge them transit dues thereon up to Rs. 10 per ton per day until the goods shall have been removed from the harbour premises. Also if the aforesaid charge should prove inadequate to ensure the removal of the goods the Trust shall itself remove them from the transit sheds at the expense of the owners and shall stack them in any open space within its premises at the risk of the owners.

The following exceptions refer only to cargo on which transit dues are levied as per clause 5 (a).

- (1) For periods during which goods are detained by the Collector of Customs,

- (2) For periods—from the date of the receipt of the consignment in the harbour office to the date of the receipt of the consignment in the Trust's office, which the Trust is unable to reach packages, owing to congestion of accommodation, to wrong sorting or to incorrect labelling;

- (3) For goods detained and destroyed under instructions from the Health Officer;

N.B.—The free period referred to in exceptions 1, 2 and 3 is over and above the usual free period allowed in clause 6 (a).

- (4) For periods not exceeding twenty-one days calculated from the date following a vessel's completion of discharge during which goods are detained for survey and are actually certified to have been surveyed either by the steamer agents or by the Trust, excluding Sundays and holidays, provided also that such goods are removed from the Trust's premises within 24 hours, excluding Sundays and holidays, after having been surveyed;
- (5) For periods not exceeding two months from the date of complete discharge of the vessel's cargo.
- (i) On goods landed in excess of the manifested quantity under the various marks;
- (ii) On goods bearing port mark other than 'Madras' not originally manifested for transhipment, and
- (iii) On unclaimed goods cleared by the steamer agents.

(b) Salvaged goods.—In the case of salvaged import goods, the free days mentioned in clause 6 (a) shall be calculated from the day following the notification of salvage by the Receiver of Wrecks in the Port of George Casette.

(c) Dangerous goods.—On the undernoted dangerous goods if landed at a quay and not cleared from the Trust's premises by consignees within (excluding Sundays and holidays) 24 Customs working hours after the day of landing transit dues shall be levied at double the full rates quoted in clause 6 (a):—Matches sulphur, glycerine, pitch, tar, cresolates, acids other than sulphuric, nitric, carbolic, muriatic and hydrochloric acids, nitrate of potash and similar alkalis.

(d) Goods on which dues are quoted "per each".—On goods for which a special rate of harbour dues "per each" is quoted, the rate of transit dues, after the free days mentioned in clause 6 (a) shall be calculated as a percentage of the harbour dues thus:—For the first week or part thereof 25 per cent for the second week or part thereof 50 per cent, and for each of the succeeding weeks or parts thereof 100 per cent.

(e) Goods from unknown vessels.—On goods from vessels whose names are unknown, transit dues shall be charged up to a maximum of two months only.

(f) Transit dues on overcarried cargo.—When goods short-landed at Madras are overcarried to another port and brought back again free days shall be calculated from the date of the complete discharge of the vessel which brought the goods back; but for the purpose of transit dues, such goods shall be charged at the rate applicable to the original consignment.

(g) Transit dues on cement.—The free days as granted from time to time as laid down in clause 6 (a) shall count in the case of cement imported into Madras in sacks from foreign ports from the day following that on which the consignments from a particular vessel have been declared by the steamer agents to be ready for delivery.

(h) Transit dues on timber.—For timber allowed to lie in the sorting enclosures of the timber yard or left afloat in the pond beyond such free time as the Trust may see fit to grant from time to time the transit dues laid down in clause 6 (a) shall be recovered from consignees. In the event of its being necessary for timber to be shifted by the direction of the Trust in the interest of cargo generally a special portage fee under clause 5, shall be recovered from the landers who, in the event, shall be at liberty to recover it from the consignees.

(i) Transit dues on goods sold in auction.—Goods sold in auction shall be liable to transit dues per clause 6 (a); if not cleared within 8 working days from the date of issue of Customs Pass Order.

(j) Transit dues due to non-supply of wagons.—Goods ready for despatch within the free days but actually despatched by rail after the expiry of the free days on account of non-supply of wagons by the railways through requisitions have been made within the free days shall pay transit dues for the entire period, i.e. from the day following the expiry of the free days to the date of the despatch, at the first week's rate applicable to the particular consignment. This concession shall not apply to iron and steel and timber landed at the iron and timber yards.

(k) Other conditions.—(i) With the exception of dangerous goods landed at a quay, half the above rates shall be charged if goods lie in the open without covering of tarpaulin or roof. (ii) Goods remaining uncleared at the expiry of the free days shall be liable to the special portage fee specified in clause 5, if shifted by the Trust in the interests of cargo generally. (iii) After transit charges begin to accrue, no allowance shall be made for Sundays or holidays. (iv) Transit dues shall be recoverable on packages which have been landed empty or partly empty.

7 Accommodation for Exports.—

(a) Convenience for exporters.—In return for its ordinary harbour dues, as per the schedule, the Trust provides accommodation, as per clause 1 (e), for the use of exporters for a period long enough, ordinarily—vide (b) below—to enable them to effect the shipment of their goods. Also see clause 10, it places certain spaces, at a rental, at exporters' disposal. But in order to prevent in the interest of all exporters equally, the abuse of the privilege of free accommodation and the congestion resulting therefrom, the Trust is obliged to impose penalty charges as per clause (c). But in imposing these penalty charges the Trust does not thereby offer to act as warehousemen for gain, for by allowing the free days permissible under the next clause it hopes to minimize its penalty collections.

(b) Free accommodation for exports.—Exports shall stand within the Trust's premises, free of penalty charges for such free days, as the Trust, by resolution in meeting, shall see fit to grant from time to time, excluding Sundays and Chamber of Commerce holidays before the date of the arrival in port of the vessel in which shipment is effected, with in addition, the days the vessel remains in port.

(c) Penalty charges.—For periods, longer than the aforesaid free days, penalty charges shall be levied on all goods left in the Trust's premises at the following rates in order to prevent congestion:—

First week, per ton per day 1 anna; ^{second} week, per ton per day 2 annas; succeeding period per ton per day 4 annas.

Half the above penalty rates shall be charged if the goods lie in the open without covering of tarpaulin or roof.

(d) Exports that have to be shifted.—Goods remaining on hand at the expiry of the free days shall be liable for the 'areal portage' fee specified in clause 5, if shifted by the Trust in the interests of cargo generally.

(e) Goods shut out from shipment.—No free days shall be allowed on goods brought into the Trust's premises and removed therefrom without a definite attempt at shipment having been made by the shipper. But intended shipments which have been shut out through no fault of the shipper, if removed from the premises, shall receive the benefit of the free days as if they had been shipped. If removed from the premises after the departure of the vessel by which they were shut out, the free period shall count up to the date of the arrival in port of the vessel by which the goods were shut out, in addition to the stay in port of that vessel and 24 hours excluding Sundays and holidays after her departure. But for goods shut out by one vessel and subsequently shipped to another vessel, the free period as laid down in clause 7 (b) shall only count up to the date of arrival of the vessel by which the goods were actually shipped with the proviso that no charge shall be levied in the case of goods water borne for shipment for the period during which such goods are kept afloat in lighters.

(f) Penalty charges on goods on which harbour dues are quoted "per each."—On goods for which a special rate of harbour dues per each is quoted, the rate of Penalty charges after the expiry of the free days, as laid down by the Trust from time to time under clause 7 (b), shall be calculated as a percentage of the harbour dues.—For the first week or part thereof 25 per cent, for the second week or part thereof 50 per cent, and for each of the succeeding weeks or part thereof 100 per cent.

(g) Salved goods.—In the case of salved export goods the free days shall count from the date on which the goods were actually salved.

8. Storage of Explosives.—

For such explosives as the Trust is licensed to store and does store in its magazine, the following scale of storage shall be charged on the undelivered balance after the expiry of the same number of free days as are allowed to other imports.

Charges per pound or part of a pound per month or part of a month first year 2 pias, second year 4 pias, succeeding period 6 pias.

9. Wharfage on Goods.—

(a) General cargo.—Wharfage at the rate of one anna per maund or part of a maund per day or part of a day shall be recoverable on goods consigned by rail to Madras Harbour but not removed on the day following that on which they are made available for delivery excluding Sundays and die non. Wharfage at the above rate shall also be recoverable on goods for outward despatch which are not consigned on the same date as they are tendered to the Trust for despatch by rail and

(b) Timber.—Timber intended for despatch by rail shall occupy space adjacent to the railway tracks free of charge for five days including the date of deposit, after which a wharfage charge of four annas per 100 square feet or part thereof per day or part thereof shall be charged. Timber for export arriving by rail if deposited near the railway track, shall be liable after the expiry of the above free days to the above wharfage fee pending its removal to allotted ground.

10. Rented space.—

(a) Allotment of space.—Persons requiring to rent space for the storage of their goods on the Trust's premises shall obtain it, if available, by making application in writing for a permit in the form prescribed by the Trust from time to time. But it shall be in the Trust's discretion to consent or to refuse to allot such space and an allotment shall, ordinarily, be refused unless the application has been made before the deposit of the goods. Rented space shall not be sublet without the previous permission of the Trust.

(b) Owner's risk.—In applying to be let store goods on space available for rent, owners shall state that they understand that they accept all risks and responsibility for goods so stored.

(c) Open space.—For rough goods stored in the open such as ashes, coal, coke, minerals, timber, scrap iron, firewood, redwood stone, etc., rent shall be charged at the rate of 1 anna per day per 1 000 square feet allotted, or part thereof, from the date of allotment.

(d) Covered space.—For cargo stored in certain of the transit sheds allotted by the Trust for such purposes from time to time, the rent shall be at the rate of Rs 5 per calendar month, or pro rata for part thereof, per 100 square feet allotted or part thereof, whether the sheds are looked by the Trust or by the owners of the cargo. For space allotted in Port Trust sheds for the storage of country pressed vegetable oils, intended for export, which cannot be stacked more than one oak high, the rent leviable on the whole area of the compartment allotted for such storage shall be Rs 8 instead of the above rate. But before he can be allotted space on these terms the lessee shall put it in writing that he understands clearly that the looking by the Trust of sheds thus partly or wholly rented to him shall not avail to make it bailee of the goods so stored unless the receipt specified in clause 1 (b) shall have passed from the Trust to him.

(e) Merchants' warehouses.—The Trust has provided certain covered sheds for lease to merchants for the storage by them at their own entire risk primarily of goods intended for export. Port dues shall be levied on vessels entering the port at the rates laid down in the second column of the schedule noted below subject to the conditions given in the third column:—

Vessels chargeable (sea-going vessels of fifteen tons and upwards)	Rate of Port dues per ton	Frequency of payment in respect of the same vessel.
Foreign vessels—	PIES
(a) Vessels engaged in trade with the Straits Settlements and Ceylon—		The payment of due at the port will exempt the ship or steamer for a period of 60 days from liability to pay the dues again.
(i) Ships	6+8*
(ii) Steamers	6+8*	The due is payable on each entry into the port.
(b) Other vessels—
(i) Ships	6+8*	The payment of the due at the port will exempt the ship for a period of 60 days from liability to pay the due again.
(ii) Steamers	6+8*
Coasting vessels—
(c) Ships	6+8*	The due is payable once in 60 days.
(d) Steamers	6+1*

Note (1)—Net registered tonnage is the cubic capacity of all available space for cargo and passengers. It is on this tonnage all ships are charged port dues and pilotage fees.

Note (2)—Gross registered tonnage is the cubic capacity of the whole ship including engine room and crew space but excludes space above deck, cabins, deck shelters, chart houses, etc.

Note (3)—"Ship" means a sailing vessel and "steamer" a steam vessel. "Foreign ship" or "Foreign steamer" means respectively a ship or steamer not being a coasting ship or coasting steamer, provided that, for the purpose of the levy of port dues, a vessel shall not be deemed, during one and the same voyage, to be both a coasting ship or steamer and a foreign ship or steamer but port dues shall, in respect of such voyage be leviable on such vessel either as a coasting or as a foreign ship or steamer whichever rate is the higher.

Note (4)—"Coasting ship" or "coasting steamer" means respectively a ship or steamer which at any port discharges cargo exclusively from, or takes in cargo exclusively for, any port in the island of Ceylon or in any part of India between the westernmost part of Sind and the south easternmost part of Burma; and "coasting steamer" includes a coasting steam vessel having a general pass under section 164 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878. The cargo carried by a coasting steamer may be intended ultimately for other places, but so long as she takes in and discharges such cargo exclusively from and at ports situated within the limits above specified her character as a coasting steamer remains unaffected. A steamer plying between the continent of India and the island of Ceylon comes under the category of coasting steamers.

* The additional 8 pies represent super dues on sea-going vessels of 15 tons and upwards except fishing boats, also tug steamers, ferry steamers and river steamers.

Note (3).—Dimensions of light & ton and more should be entered in the tonnage and less than half a ton neglected.

Note (4).—Port dues are leviable according as the vessel is laden or in ballast on arrival, at the same may be, only on vessels entering a port and not on those leaving one in any case.

Note (7).—There is no provision in the Act for the full rate being assessed on a vessel arriving at a port in ballast because she afterwards leaves that port laden.

Note (8).—In calculating the expiration of the period of exemption the day of payment should be reckoned as one of the thirty or sixty days, as the case may be, and the day of entry should be reckoned as the day of payment whether the dues are actually paid in on the day of entry or subsequently and the date on which the liability to dues is based is that on which a vessel passes the geographical limits of a port and not the day she enters at the Port or Customs Office.

3 Port dues shall not be levied on —

- (i) Any pleasure yacht (Section 48 of Act XV of 1908).
- (ii) Any vessel which having left the port is compelled to re-enter it by stress of weather or in consequence of having sustained any damage.
- (iii) All Government vessels and men-of-war belonging to any foreign Prince or State entering the port.
- (iv) Any vessel either in ballast or with cargo or passengers which, having entered any port leaves it within 48 hours without discharging or taking in any passengers or cargo under sections 46 and 47 of the Indian Ports Act.
- (v) A vessel discharging or shipping lascar crew and leaving a port within 48 hours.
- (vi) Vessels belonging to or in the service of the Durbars of Brada and Travancore (Section 44 of Act XV of 1908).

3 Vessels entering the port in ballast and not carrying passengers shall pay port dues at three-fourths of the rate laid down above (Section 48 of Act XV of 1908).

4 Vessels that enter the port but do not discharge or take in any cargo or passengers therein (with the exception of such unshipment and re-shipment as may be necessary for purposes of repair) shall pay half port dues (Section 47 of Act XV of 1908).

5. A vessel landing a passenger at a port without anchoring and proceeding on her voyage is liable to port dues.

6 A vessel arriving at a port damaged and otherwise damaged in a cyclone and condemned after survey as irreparable and abandoned to the underwriters may claim a refund of port dues subject to the previous sanction of Government.

7 A vessel which has paid full port dues as a 'foreign vessel' once for the voyage is during that voyage exempted from payment of further dues as a coasting vessel notwithstanding the fact that in the course of the foreign voyage she discharges cargo exclusively from, or takes in cargo exclusively for, an Indian port.

8 A foreign vessel calling at Madras and taking cargo for a port in India changes her character and becomes liable to payment of port dues at Madras as a coasting vessel.

9 A vessel proceeding from a British Indian port (say Calcutta) to a foreign port and calling at another British port (say Madras) en route to take in cargo for a foreign port, should at Madras be treated as a foreign vessel for the purpose of port dues.

10 Vessels entering the port and taking in only provisions water, bunker coal or liquid fuel for their own consumption shall be charged port dues at half rates.

11 A vessel after paying three-fourths port dues under clause 3 above re-enters the port within the period prescribed with cargo or passengers shall be charged the difference, viz., one-fourth previously conceded.

12 Vessels that have paid three-fourths port dues on arrival under paragraph 3 above discharging bunker coal shall be charged the difference viz., one-fourth previously conceded.

13 Vessels after paying half port dues under paragraph 4 above re-entering the port within the period prescribed with cargo or passengers shall be charged the difference, viz., half previously conceded.

Parties having goods to clear through the Customs House may do so, either personally or, through authorized agents. Instructions, regarding procedure in clearance, may be obtained on application to the Collector of Customs, at whose office a list of authorized agents will be found posted. Parties are advised that it is their business to declare goods brought to the Customs House and that the Customs officers do not undertake to advise consignees of the contents of goods which are brought there. Goods left uncleared for four months are forfeited to Government and sold by auction.

Under section 86 (b) of the Sea Customs Act, goods at the Port of Madras, are landed into the custody of the Madras Port Trust, who are responsible for seeing that they are delivered to the rightful owners. Bills of lading or other proofs of ownership in goods, should be produced to the Port Trust.

Goods imported must be declared at the real value as defined in the Act. Undervaluation of goods renders the owner liable to penalties, as well as to have his goods taken over by Government at the price put upon them.

GENERAL DUTIES.

SEA BARN TRADE OF MADRAS PRESIDENCY

THE BRITISH EMPIRE

The value of the trade with the British Empire increased by more than 5 per cent. from Rs. 3,350.36 lakhs to 3,489.44 lakh and its share of the aggregate trade of the Presidency expanded from 53.0 per cent to 53.8 per cent. The value of the imports rose by 4 per cent. while that of exports increased by 8 per cent. Trade with Foreign Countries decreased by Rs. 497.91 lakhs or by 17 per cent, imports showing an increase of Rs. 15.40 lakhs and exports decrease of Rs. 664.87 lakhs.

United Kingdom—The trade of the United Kingdom represented 87.41 per cent of the aggregate trade of the Presidency as compared with 86.55 per cent in 1925-26. Imports expanded by Rs. 42.31 lakhs or 4 per cent, the increase being, most marked under cotton piece goods (plus Rs. 86.98 lakhs). The other items contributing to the increase were machinery and mill work (plus Rs. 10.51 lakhs), twist and yarn (Rs. 5.88 lakhs), provisions (plus Rs. 4.28 lakhs), cycles (plus Rs. 3.99 lakhs), paints and colours and tobacco. The increases were partly counterbalanced by decreases under railway plant and rolling stock (minus Rs. 39.38 lakhs), metals and ores (minus Rs. 18.45 lakhs), artificial silk (minus Rs. 7.33 lakhs), soap (minus Rs. 5.61 lakhs), cement (minus Rs. 4.57 lakhs), postal articles, rubber manufactures and paper and pasteboard. Exports which represent nearly 38 per cent of the total export trade of the Presidency declined by nearly 5 per cent as compared with 1925-26. Decreases were recorded under raw cotton (minus Rs. 89.81 lakhs), coffee (minus Rs. 24.16 lakhs), cotton handkerchiefs (minus Rs. 21.38 lakhs), tanned hides (minus Rs. 18.20 lakhs), spices and jaggery. The decrease was to some extent set off by increased shipment under tanned skins (plus Rs. 69.64 lakhs), groundnuts (plus Rs. 27.51 lakhs), tobacco (plus Rs. 3.73 lakhs), raw rubber, woollen manufactures and oil-seeds.

British Possessions—The trade with Ceylon rose by Rs. 189.53 lakhs or by nearly 10 per cent, imports improved by Rs. 18.24 lakhs due to larger arrivals of gunny bags, precious stones, apparel, gold thread and articles by post, though imports of betel nuts showed a decline. Exports went up by Rs. 119.64 lakhs as a result of larger despatches of grain and pulse (plus Rs. 66.78 lakhs), cotton piece-goods (plus Rs. 18.78 lakhs), fruits and vegetables (plus Rs. 4.70 lakhs), raw cotton (plus Rs.

lakhs), and living animals (plus Rs 11 lakhs) partly counteracted by smaller exports of articles by post (minus Rs 6.61 lakhs), raw rubber and manures. Imports from the Straits Settlements fell off by Rs 11.74 lakhs owing to smaller receipts of animal oils (minus Rs. 7.97 lakhs) and benzene (minus Rs. 6.87 lakhs), though coffee and tin expanded by Rs. 2.14 lakhs and Rs. 1.59 lakhs respectively. There was little variation in the export trade with the Straits. Increased receipts of indentures (plus Rs. 7.19 lakhs) and rubber manufactures. (Plus Rs. 8.00 lakhs), improved the import trade with Canada by Rs 18.04 lakhs. The improvement in the trade with the Federated Malay States occurred in the shipments of coloured piece-goods to that country. The increase of trade with Western Australia by Rs. 15.13 lakhs is mainly due to larger receipts of wooden sleepers (plus Rs. 14.43 lakhs) from that country.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES IN EUROPE.

The trade with these countries showed a decrease of 17 per cent below that of the previous year as a net result of decreased shipments by Rs 664.41 lakhs set off by larger imports by Rs. 106.46 lakhs. The trade with Germany increased by Rs 10.06 lakhs. The increase of Rs. 47.90 lakhs under imports was contributed by metals (plus Rs. 17.84 lakhs), glassware (plus 7.98 lakhs), dyes and colours (plus Rs. 6.81 lakhs) paper and pasteboard (plus Rs. 5.66 lakhs) hardware (plus Rs. 4.41 lakhs), machinery (plus Rs. 3.78 lakhs), and chemicals, while railway plant and rolling stock showed a decrease of Rs. 8.21 lakhs. Smaller despatches of groundnut kernels (minus Rs. 16.17 lakhs), raw cotton (minus Rs. 9.81 lakhs) raw jute (minus Rs. 9.16 lakhs) pepper (minus Rs. 3.10 lakhs), partly set off by larger shipments of oil manufactures and coffee decreased the exports by Rs 23.84 lakhs. The trade with France declined by Rs. 197.57 lakhs or 31 per cent. The imports increased by Rs. 8.06 lakhs due to larger arrivals of gold thread (plus Rs. 8.90 lakhs), and liquors. Exports decreased by Rs. 293.63 lakhs. This large decrease was brought about by smaller shipments of groundnuts (minus Rs. 187.83 lakhs), coffee (minus Rs. 30.94 lakhs) and raw cotton (minus Rs. 15.19 lakhs). The trade with Netherlands fell by Rs 4.21 lakhs as a net result of smaller shipments of groundnuts (minus 8.41 lakhs) and coffee though larger arrivals of oil manufactures (plus Rs. 3.46 lakhs) and dyes and colours acted as a partial set off. The trade with Belgium fell by Rs. 61.63 lakhs or 29 per cent. Imports showed increases under metals and ores (plus Rs. 13.88 lakhs), precious stones (plus Rs. 4.06 lakhs) and glassware while the exports showed decreases under raw cotton (minus Rs. 64.48 lakhs), groundnuts (minus Rs. 1.19), raw jute (minus Rs. 7.65 lakhs) coffee and oil manufactures. The decrease of Rs. 32.34 lakhs in the trade with Italy was caused by smaller shipments of raw cotton (minus Rs. 67.83 lakhs) and oil manufactures partly counterbalanced by larger despatches of groundnuts (plus Rs. 46.11 lakhs), and coffee. There was little variation in the imports from Italy. The decrease of Rs. 26.67 lakhs in the trade with Spain is the result of smaller shipments mainly of groundnuts (minus Rs. 35.78 lakhs) to that country.

FOREIGN TRADE WITH ASIA.

Trade with Non British Asiatic ports which fell by Rs. 191.80 lakhs or by 29 per cent represented nearly 6 per cent of the aggregate trade of the Presidency. The trade with Japan went down from Rs. 439.07 lakhs to Rs. 305.16 lakhs or by nearly 54 per cent. The fall of Rs. 16.84 lakhs in the imports was due, mainly to smaller arrivals of twist and yarn (minus Rs. 16.17 lakhs). The decrease of Rs. 219.06 lakhs under exports was brought about by smaller despatches of raw cotton (minus Rs. 217.66 lakhs) and tanned sheep skins. China took less raw cotton and cotton twist but sent more raw silk resulting in a net decrease of Rs. 8.28 lakhs, in the total trade with that country. Imports from Java increased from Rs. 03.07 lakhs to Rs. 100.84 lakhs owing to larger arrivals of sugar (plus Rs. 46.67 lakhs) while exports practically remained the same as in the previous year.

AMERICA

The total trade with America which was mostly with the United States amounted to Rs. 608.28 lakhs, an increase of about 2 per cent over the previous years figures. Imports from the United States showed an increase of Rs. 14.68 lakhs mainly under mineral oils (plus Rs. 8.81 lakhs), sugar (plus Rs. 7.28 lakhs), railway materials (plus Rs. 4.71 lakhs) leaf tobacco (plus Rs. 4.51 lakhs) machinery (plus Rs. 1.75 lakhs) and hardware partly set off by smaller arrivals under vehicles (minus Rs. 9.03 lakhs) metals (minus Rs. 7.78 lakhs), and rubber manufactures. Exports decreased by Rs. 9.94 lakhs due to smaller despatches of raw skins minus Rs. 11.49 lakhs, spices minus Rs. 6.81 lakhs raw rubber (minus Rs. 4.08 lakhs) and oil manufactures partly set off by larger shipments of castor seeds (plus Rs. 20.18 lakhs) and tanned skins.

SUMMARY ON COTTON EXPORT

The area under cotton in 1926-27 decreased by 102,300 acres below that of the previous year or by 4 per cent and the yield which was available for exports in the year under review amounted to 551,400 bales (each bale containing 400 lb of Net), a decrease of 1,900 bales. Exports during the year 1926-27 went down by 51 per cent in quantity and 61 per cent in value as compared with the previous year. A marked fall is noticeable in the shipments to all destinations. There was abnormal production of cotton in America during the year under review and consequent fall in prices as a result of which European and Japanese firms preferred purchasing cheap American Cotton rather than the dearer Indian. The spot price of middling American which was 10.65 at the beginning of April 1926 declined to 9.25, by the beginning of July but rose to 10.85 by the 3rd week of July. Thereafter the price steadily dropped till it reached 8.80 by the first week of January 1927 rising to 7.85 at the end of the financial year 1926-27. The average local price for cotton (Western, good quality) per candy of 50 lb was Rs 110 in April 1926 and Rs 230 in March 1927. An analysis of the quantities of the different varieties of cotton exported shows that Tinnervellys as usual, claimed the largest share, viz., 55 per cent, and Northern and Westerns, shipped at the Madras Port 43 per cent. Shipments from Ombout and Cocanada together amounted to 2 per cent. The estimated area and output of cotton during 1926-27 the exportable surplus of which will be available for shipment during 1927-28 are given below:—

	Acres	Bales
Ombout	220,000	122,000
Tinnervellys	531,500	145,000
Salinas	188,300	31,700

There is a criminal settlement at Anjanagar in Vriddhachalam Taluk.

Paddy, Cambrugi and vengai form the important food crops. The chief industrial crops are ground-nut, other oil seeds, indigo and sugarcane. The bulk of the population are Hindus who form 94 per cent. The population is essentially agricultural.

INDUSTRY.—Manufacture on a small scale of oil, indigo and coarse country cloth. Ouddalore.—A sea-port, and the head-quarters of the district, is situated on the Pennar or Gadilam river, vessels anchor within about 1½ miles of the shore. In 1682, the E. I. C. opened up negotiations with the Khan of Gingee for a factory at Ouddalore, and the first buildings were put up in 1688; a ring of palmyra trees still marks the land ceded for the settlement trade grew rapidly, and the company erected Fort St. David and enlarged their warehouses. In 1702 the fortifications were rebuilt on more modern lines. On the fall of Madras in 1746, the administration was taken to Ouddalore. Fort St. David was soon after twice besieged by Duplex, but without success, in 1752, the head-quarters of Government were re-established in Madras, and six years after, the French occupied the town and stormed and destroyed the Fort. It was re-taken by the British in 1766, but again fell into the hands of the French in 1772, and was unsuccessfully besieged by the British in the following year. In 1785, it was finally restored to England, under the Treaty of Versailles.

A few of the ruins of the old Fort still exist and the old garden-house (1788) of the Governors of Fort St. David is now the official residence of the Collector of the district.

There is a Station Club and also one for Indian gentlemen. Conveyances can be hired at the Railway Station (South Indian Railway), and in the town.

BELLARY

The district of Bellary (Vahari) lies between latitudes $14^{\circ} 14'$ and $15^{\circ} 57'$ and longitudes $75^{\circ} 46'$ and $77^{\circ} 46'$ with an area, including the Sandur State, of 5,718 sq miles, and a population of 8,02,870 (according to the 1921 Census). Languages spoken in the district are Canarese, Telugu and Hindustani. It is bounded on the North by H. H. the Nizam's Territory, from which it is divided by the Tungabhadra river, on the South west and South by the Mysore country, on the East by the districts of Anantapur and Kurnool and on the West by Mysore and the district of Dharwar in the Bombay Presidency. The height of the plateau averages from 800 to 1,000 feet above the level of the sea. The western taluqs are the highest, as the country there gradually slopes towards the western ghats. In the southern taluq, also, as the table-land of Mysore is reached, the elevation is not considerable. The soil in the eastern taluqs is largely composed of the celebrated regada or black cotton soil. In the western taluqs there are patches of the same soil, but the red soils predominate, and in the neighbourhood of hills, good gravel is found.

The general aspect is that of an extensive plateau, elevated on the shoulders of the western and eastern ghats, the plain of which forms a considerable angle with the horizon, inclining towards the east coast of the peninsula. Thus at Belgaum, in the South Mahratta country, the height of the plain is 2,500 feet above the level of the sea, at Bellary it is 1,000 feet. The western ghats clearly form the anticlinal line to which the aridaceous and hirsute eastern ranges are more or less conformable. The plain has another and more gentle dip towards the north, to the beds of the Kistna and Tungabhadra rivers. The bed of the Tungabhadra is a little more than 1,000 feet above the level of the sea, the plain rises as we proceed south and in the centre of the district, the surface of the plain presents a monotonous and almost treeless extent, bounded by the horizon, and unbroken save by a few rocky elevations that stand forth abruptly from the sheet of black soil like rocks from the ocean. Of this tract, Sir F. Maunro wrote "These districts are more desolate of trees than any part of Scotland I ever saw; the traveller scarcely meets with one in twenty miles and nowhere with a clump of fifty." Since this was written large sums of money have been spent in planting teak and trees and some success has been attained. The towns of Bellary itself is fairly well wooded, and along all the roads in the district, avenues have been planted. The Sandur hills are covered with a good growth, though the trees are nowhere very large yet. Almost every variety of tree known in South India can be found on these hills. In the Kudligi Taluq, there are large areas now under reservation, containing a fair growth of small forest.

In the reign of Krishnaraya of Vijayanagar, a small fort was built at Bellary by Timmappa, a dependant of that king. He and his son Rangappa held it for many years paying an annual tribute of Rs. 1,000. After the battle of Talikota, Bellary became subject to the Mohammedan sovereigns of Bijapur, but the successors of Rangappa Nisak were almost independent, and in 1680 Haasmappa, his grandson, defeated the descendant of the Vijayanagar Rajas, who claimed tribute from him, in a battle which was fought near Kampli. For another century the feud went on between the Rajas of Bellary, as they now styled themselves, and their former masters. After a time, Bellary became part of the possessions of the Nizam and was included in the Jaghir of Adoni which had been given to Basalat Jung, the Nizam's brother. In 1769, Sadfar Jung and M. Bussy were sent from Adoni to collect the tribute, which the Peshwa had for some years refused to pay. The Peshwa rashly called Hyder Ali to his aid, who reached Bellary by forced marches, and engaged and defeated the army of Basalat Jung, in the plain at the foot of the rock. Daddappa Nisak the Peligar, who had watched the coast from the top of the rock, fled by night to Sholapur, and Hyder took possession. He spent much money on the fortifications and, with the assistance of some French adventurers, who were in his camp, he built the upper and the lower forts much as they now are. Tradition adds, that at the completion of the work these Frenchmen were hanged near the fort gate, because Hyder then for the first time discovered that the other rock was the higher and that from it his stronghold could be commanded. Bellary was held by Hyder Ali and afterwards by Tipu till 1799, when, by the partition treaty of 1792, it fell to the Nizam. The rock round which Bellary town is built is a huge granitic mass, rising somewhat abruptly from the plain. It is about 450 feet above the level of the plain, and nearly two miles in circumference. To the east and north, the appearance presented is that of a heap of boulders irregularly piled one on the other, but, to the west, it slopes down more gradually and offers an unbroken surface of sheet rock. To the north is a smaller detached mass of rocks.

The climate of Bellary is characterised by extreme dryness, in consequence of the air passing over such an extent of heated plains. Less rain is supposed to fall at Bellary than at any other place in South India. The quantity of moisture in the air as indicated by the hydrometer, is exceedingly minute, though the air is remarkable for its transparency. More rain falls in the taluqs bordering on the Tungabhadra. From the situation of the district, almost in the centre of the peninsula, it benefits by both monsoons, and yet does not get the full force of either. From the commencement of November to the end of May, rain rarely falls, though sometimes, in April and May, there are violent thunderstorms and much atmospheric disturbance. In the first week in June the south-west monsoon is looked for, and, with the first few heavy showers, the hot weather is at an end. About 5 inches of rain fall in this month and July. Towards the end of September, the wind veers round to the north, and south the middle of October. The district is visited by the north-east monsoon. The average rainfall in September and October is 9½ inches.

The cool season begins in the month of November, at the close of the north-east monsoon. During this period, the wind is steady from the north-east and the weather is extremely pleasant. In the early morning, the thermometer is often as low as 65°, but the usual daily range is from 67° to 85°. The atmosphere is clear and the nights very cool. Towards the end of February, the weather begins to get hot, and early in March, the country presents an altered appearance. As the month advances the hot west winds set in vegetation disappears, all the grass is burned up, and the country resembles a dreary waste. In the black cotton country the soil, baked as hard as a stone, is split in all directions by cracks and fissures from one to three feet in depth. In the other taluks dust-storms are of frequent occurrence. The atmosphere glows intensely, and the glare, increased by the white and sparkling nature of the ground, is most distressing. The tanks rapidly dry up and expose beds of slime and decomposing mud. The nights are generally calm, and the atmosphere is stagnant and oppressive to a degree. Towards the end of May the heat is almost insupportable. At midnight even the thermometer sometimes marks 100° Fahr., and glass and wood crack simply from the heat. In the day time the houses are becoiled by cuscus ratties, but after sunset the hot wind usually falls. At the end of the month, or in the beginning of June, heavy clouds begin to gather in the south-west, and generally after a few days of oppressive stillness the approach of the monsoon is heralded by two or three violent thunderstorms. These cool and refresh the air and the hot weather is at an end. The interval between the two monsoons is generally very pleasant. The days are cloudy and the air fresh and agreeable. September is usually drier and oppressive and this lasts till the rain falls. For three months of the year, the heat is excessive, but the remaining nine months are comparatively cool and pleasant.

GENERAL—Bellary is a military station garrisoned by European and native troop and is a municipality with some trade. Adoni (80 283) is an important town in the cotton trade. It is also a Municipality. The Sirugappa taluk is completely isolated from railway communication.

CLIMATE—Hot and very dry
RAINFALL—Deficient and precarious. Average rainfall 24 inches. Ramandrug has double the fall of the district.

AGRICULTURE—Paddy and sugarcane are grown on wet lands. Cotton is the chief industrial crop. Sugarcane is very paying.

INDUSTRIES—There are many cotton ginning factories in the district. There is a good trade in cereals.

TALUKS—Adoni, Alur, Bellary, Hadagalli, Harpanahalli, Hospet, Kullagi, Rayadurg and Siragappa.

CHINGLEPUT

The District of Chingleput derives its name from the town Chingleput. The town in Tamil is made up of two words "Chengal" and "Putram" "Chengal" means rice land, as it was a town full of rice lands which also are now extensive though not in abundance. The district also is the site of Mirra, an important place, the seven taluqs of Chingleput, Conjeevaram, Madurantakam, Ponnur, Saldappu, Thiruvallur and Sripurambudur, with an area of 3,071 square miles, and population of 1,428,088, the majority of whom are engaged in agriculture. There are 82,236 weavers, a third of whom reside in and about Conjeevaram. The languages of the district are Tamil and Telugu. The Palar is the chief river in the district. Parts of the Chingleput and Madurantakam taluqs are undoubtedly pretty, presenting undulating plains varied, bridged or wooded hills. These taluqs are well known as snipe grounds. Snipes are found from October till the end of March. The South Indian Railway Company has two lines in the district, one short branch, 102 miles, connects Conjeevaram with Arkonam, another runs from Madras southwards, passing on its way through St. Thomas Mount, Pallavaram, Chingleput and Madurantakam.

Chingelput is the chief town of the district and here are the offices of the District Judge and Sub-Collector but the Head-quarters of the Collectorate are at Bellapatt. The Fort, which is Chingelput's chief characteristic was granted after the fall of the Vijayanagar power about the end of the 16th century. It passed out of the possession of its original constructors, the Hindis, into the hands of the Mohammedans, and in 1781, it was taken by Chanda Sahib from Mahomed Ali, when, with the aid of the French, he invaded the Carnatic. In 1762, a French force called them it and made a species attempt to prevent the capture of Seringapatam by Capt. Oliver, who, after reducing the place, marched on Chingleput and took it. With the advent of peace, a jail was established and in 1809, the jail was practically handed over to the Educational department for the purpose of a Reformatory school. This school is intended for the juvenile offenders of the Presidency, who are sent there by the Magistrate, usually for petty offences, theft, etc. The staff consists of a Superintendent who is the Medical Officer of the District, a Deputy Superintendent, who is the chief and permanent executive officer, and who is a member of the Provincial Educational Service. The present Superintendent is W. O. Fonseca. There is no Deputy Superintendent now. There is also a staff of teachers and trained instructor-masters. The boys are taught carpenter's, blacksmith's and rattan works, tailoring, weaving, etc. There is also a band and bugle class. Great attention is paid to physical and moral training, and when the boys leave the institution they are provided with appointments through the help of the District Magistrate. The work of the institution is unique, and it is well worth a visit if others from similar institutions in other parts of India, inasmuch as the boys are treated in a manner akin to that of a Boarding School. There are two High Schools in the town, the Native High School and the U. F. O. M. High School.

GENERAL.—The district is crossed from West to East by the Arani, the Kortaliyar and the Palamall of which come from beyond its boundaries. The last mentioned which receives the Chettyar has a course of about 40 miles. It is by nature capricious and uncertain liable to heavy freshes and long periods of dryness. It has a heavy fall and therefore a strong current. A considerable number of irrigation channels are taken off from it during its course. The Kortaliyar is tapped to provide water for the Channarayanaikkam. Red Hills and several other tanks the supply to the former being carried part of the way by the Coomam a stream which rises in the district and enters the sea at Madras. The head-quarters of the collector are in the Municipal town of Saindapat (37 404). Chinglepet (11 703) and Cojaveeram (11 3, 6) are the other Municipalities in the district. St. Thomas Mount (14 N 9:1) an ancient military station 9 miles from Madras. Sembayan (31 235) is the largest Local Fund Union in the Presidency. Tiruvattiyur (9 100) Tiruvallur (9 361) Madurantakam (7 113), Tirukkalkunram (7 957) Tiempoor (9 169) Sripurambudur (5 880) and Mahabalipuram (1 500) and all places of pilgrimage in the district. The last mentioned is a place of much archaeological interest. Pallat Sainam and Cojaveeram were settlements of the Dutch East India Company from the 17th century to 1835 and still contain vestiges of the Dutch Ports.

CLIMATE.—Healthy.

RAINFALL.—Average 45 inches.

INDUSTRY.—Weaving is the most important occupation. Superior Silk and cotton cloths are made at Cojaveeram. In many places Lungi, Kyll and Patumbaru. Lungi and Kyll are exported to the Straits Settlements and Patumbaru is exported to Jamaica. Mauritius, South Africa and other places. Fly shuttle looms are slowly taking the place of handlooms at Cojaveeram. The number of looms is estimated at 15,000. Salt making is another industry, carried on at 8 factories. Tanuades are also fairly numerous especially in the Saindapat taluk. The cutting and transport to Madras of casuarina wood is an industry that thrives in the coast villages.

COMMUNICATIONS.—The roads in the district are well laid out.

The Seven Pagodas on the coast which can be approached by road from Chinglepet are at a distance of 18 miles. These are monolithic tombs, Dravidian in character, and are certainly anterior to the 17th century B. C. No traveller should fail to visit these works of the sculptor's art.

Tirukkalkundram on the hill of the sacred kites is situated half way between Chinglepet and the sea coast. It is a ridge terminating in a spiked hill on which stand the remains of a quaint temple of great antiquity and dedicated to Siva. Every day two birds of the kite species come to the hill to be fed by an attendant Pandaram. They are said to come from Benares.

Cojaveeram lies 22 miles west of Chinglepet. The native name of the place is Kanchi or Golden city (or the place where Brahma worshipped Vishnu) and Siva is said to have exclaimed that "of all towns Kanchi is best. There is a large weaving community, and fine country cloths of all kinds are still manufactured there in large quantities. Cojaveeram is the most sacred city in the South of India. There are three tempo last temples, the oldest is dedicated to Siva, the second to Vishnu, and the third to the "loving eye" Parvati the wife of Siva. The town has always been celebrated for its fine wide streets and pleasant appearance. It possesses a good water-supply the water being pumped from a fine well situated in the middle of the Vegavathi, a tributary of the Palair river. It is an important market town in the district.

Sripurambudur is situated about 25 miles to the west of Madras. It is noted as the birth-place of the famous Sri Ramanuja Charitar of the Vaishnava sect.

Walloombid is situated on the Palair between Cojaveeram and Chinglepet. It was a Military Cantonment for many years, but the mortality became so great that the place received the name of 'the grave of Europeans.'

Pallat, a village ten miles north west of Cojaveeram, was twice the scene of battles between the English and Hyder Ali. It was in the first battle in 1781 that the English sustained the most crushing defeat ever inflicted on them in India. In the following year, Hyder gave battle at the same place and was defeated by Sir Eyre Coote. On the field are two tombs of officers who were killed in the second battle.

Madurantakam is situated on the Great Southern Trunk Road, at the 80th mile from Madras. The Railway passes the town. The majority of the landholders are Vaidikavid Brahmins. The only noteworthy feature of the place is its very fine tank.

Karanguli is two miles from Madurantakam. The most interesting historic monument is, for the origin of which appears to be Mahomedan; about 1750 it passed into the hands of the French when Desaix captured the cause of Chanda Sahib. In 1759, Sir Eyre Coote marched against it unsuccessfully, but, in the year following, it fell into the hands of Hyder. In 1781, Sir Eyre, who was at Chingleput, sent Capt. Davis with 1,000 men to occupy it, which he did by blowing open the gateway. The Madurantakam tank, one of the largest in the South, which was formed towards the end of the 18th century, by damming up the Kilijyar river, commemorates the name of the Place, the Collector under whose auspices it was constructed. His house at Karanguli is now used as a Travellers' Bungalow.

Saidapet Taluk.—The rivers that flow through this taluk are—

1. The Cortiller which falls into the Easore backwater

2. The Cooum, after supplying the Ohembrambakam tank, flows through the town of Madras into the Sea.

The Adyar which falls to the South of Mysapore a suburb of Madras

The Red Hill tank depends for its supply on a channel taken off from an ancient, across the Cortal Hill. The water first flows into the Sholavaram tank and then through a regulating sluice into a channel for its conveyance to the Northern end of the Red Hills tank. Water is conveyed to the City of Madras by a closed conduit. During the hot months water often becomes scarce and has to be pumped.

Saidapet is five miles from Fort St. George and is the head-quarters of the Collector. Of late years it has become an educational centre, with the establishment of the Teachers' College.

Guindy is about a mile-and-a-half south of Saidapet. The Governor of Madras has a residence and an extensive Park here. The King Institute, for bacteriological investigations and the main feature of vaccine is located in Guindy. Here is located the Madras Race Course.

Poonamallee is situated on the Western Trunk Road, 18 miles from Madras. It was established as Cantonment for the purpose of receiving European invalids. It is still used as a sanitarium for British Troops.

Tiruvallur at the Northern end of this taluk the Nagalapuram and Sattiyavedu hills relieve the flatness of it—Kambakamdrug the highest point is 2,548 feet above the level of the sea. The Cooum has its source principally in the surplus waters of the tank of the same name. Red handkerchiefs and Muslin cloths are manufactured in the Sattiyavedu division and are sent to Bangalore. Tiruvallur is the chief town of the taluk. The temple (Vishwagilavar) at each Newmoon, attracts crowds of Pilgrims from Madras to whom it would appear the greatest sin if they were prevented from paying their devotions and performing their ablutions.

CHITTOOR

The District of Chittoor was constituted with effect from 1st April 1911. It comprises the taluhs of Chittoor, Palmaner and Chundragiri transferred from the old North Arcot district and of Madanagalla and Vayalpad transferred from the old Cuddapah district as well as the Zemindaries of Pungam, Kalahasti and Karvetnagar. It is bounded on the North by the Anantapur, Cuddapah and Nellore districts, on the East by the Nellore and Chingleput districts on the South by the North Arcot district and on the West by the Mysore State. It covers an extent of 6,411 square miles. Its population is 1,309,187 at the Census of 1921. Chittoor with a population of 231,787 is the head quarters of the district but is not the most important town in the district. The other important places in the district are Tirupati (16,701) a place of pilgrimage well-known throughout India, Madanagalla (141,810), Kalahasti (109,691), also a place of pilgrimage and Pungam (109,691). Tirupati and Chittoor are two Municipalities in the district; its average income from local taxation is Rs. 21,200 and 27,970, respectively. Pakhal and Baniaras are important railway junctions.

The chief languages of the district are Telugu and Tamil the former being the language of 78 per cent. of the population, Kannara is spoken by a considerable number, namely, 18,975 and 3,367 people speak Marathi, about 94 per cent. of the people are Hindus and 6 per cent. Muhammadans.

INDUSTRIES.—There are two bell metal factories at Kalahasti. Brassware at Tirupati shows signs of revival. Indigo cultivation is on the increase especially in Karvetnagar.

Tirupati.—About 88 miles north west of Madras lies Tirupathi one of the most sacred towns of India. The town constituted a Municipality on 1-4-1896. It is situated at the foot of the hills on which stands the celebrated shrine of Venkateswara Brindavan or Balaji and is in a broad valley about the centre of a long range of hills running almost north and south through which also flows the river Swarnamukhi about 8 miles to the south of the town. Its extent is 14 sq. miles. A petty little water-fall known as the Amor or the Kopistharam descends from the hill just north of the town, and during the rains, the volume of water is not inconsiderable. The banners of Tirupathi present a very busy scene. The town has fast improved, substantial buildings having taken the place of the old flat mud terraced houses of the Mysore plateau pattern. Its population has been speedily increasing. The new Act raised the strength of the council to 18, (12 elected and 6 nominated) and the councillors are now elected for each of the six wards. The town has now a pure water supply got through cast iron pipes from wells sunk on the bed of a stream 7 miles west. The scheme had cost Rs 4,88,000. As the wells are on a higher level water naturally flows down into two small service reservoirs, constructed near the town from which the supply to the town, is regulated.

The Municipality maintains a hospital of its own. It contains 22 beds and is well equipped. Pilgrim tax is now levied on all persons leaving the stations.

The town is free from epidemics and the general health is satisfactory. A good drainage scheme is urgently required. There are two secondary schools in the town one is maintained by the American Mission and the other by the Devasthanam. Both the schools impart education to the VI Form. The Municipality maintains 9 elementary schools (6 for boys and 3 for girls). The whole cost of maintaining the schools is met partly from Municipal Funds and partly from Government Grants.

GUNTUR

A District in the Madras Presidency is bounded on the North by the river Kistna on the South by the Nellore District on the East by the River Kistna and the Bay of Bengal; and on the West by the Nellore and Kurnool districts and the river Kistna. Area, 5,788 sq. miles. Population 1921, 1,808,574. Population of the town 254,993. Languages—Telugu and Hindustani.

GENERAL—An ancient was constructed in 1818 across the Kistna between the two hills at Beswada and Sattamagaram. The Kistna river enters the district near the Ganikonda hills in the Palnad taluk and falls into the sea after a course of 81 miles. The Gundakama river rises in the Cumbum taluk and traverses the Vinukonda and Ongole taluks of the district. Other rivers are the Nagurnu and the Musi. There are three irrigation canals, viz., the Commamur, the Bank and the Nisampatam. These are also used for navigation purposes. The Commamur canal joins the Buckingham canal as a means of navigation near Peda Ganjam in the Bapatla taluk thus establishing through communications between Beswada and Madras.
